LIBERALS FIRE ON EMMERSON;
NEAR FIST FIGHTFalse! Shouts House
G. O. P. at Another.

BY PERCY WOOD.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Springfield, Ill., April 16.—[Special.]—House liberals directed a storm of abuse at Gov. Emmerson today for his veto of the O'Grady-McDermott state prohibition law.

The cross-fire lasted for hours as the drys and some Republicans vetoed the attack against the administration.

The bitterness reached a high point early in the day when two Republicans threatened a punch one another in the nose over the word "falsehood," which was used by Speaker Shannon's rival.

Much of the liberals' castigation had to do with the governor's alleged use of state funds to print 200,000 marked copies of his veto message and broadcast them over the state.

"That's the middle line of the anti-alcohol league," charged Representative Thomas J. O'Grady, author of the veto bill.

Point of Personal Privilege.
Representative Leroy M. Green (Rep., Rockford), began the first veto when he rose on a point of personal privilege to resent statements made by the veto message.

"This governor," he began, "calls me a lawbreaker, but what about the anti-alcohol league? If Chicago has been given the full representation it is entitled to, the drys should have passed the state bill in 1913. The law had its birth in nullification."

"I voted against reappointment and I justify it on the grounds of necessity. And we see now that the governor is printing 200,000 copies of his veto message at the expense of the taxpayers, with the excuse that the people have a right to official copies of it."

"Why, every paper in the state carried it in full. This governor is supposed to be a 'common' governor, and he does this 'circulating' at taxpayer expense. I resent his calling 'nullification.' It is a deliberate and unqualified falsehood."

Defended by Schneckenberg.
Representative Elmer J. Schneckenberg (Rep., Chicago), who voted for the O'Grady bill, followed Green with a speech that the house should "take care of its own printing" and attend to the work it had to do. Let the governor alone, was the burden of his speech.

"You favor our letting him alone," stated Representative O'Grady. "Why doesn't he let us alone? We need to run our own business and pass the bill."

"We have that some one came to the defense of this Republican governor who thinks himself a king," said Minority Leader M. L. Igoe (Rep., Chicago). "I can see him sitting in the glass and saying, 'I am the state.' He nullified the vote of 2,000 people; he nullified the vote of the house; he nullified the vote of the senate, and why? Because he wants to 'protect' the people. What a selfish politician!"

Referendum Is Quoted.
"What he says," Mr. Schneckenberg said, "is a message, so he sends it out in the name of the state convention that passed the referendum. He is spending the people's money and I say that it is illegal, unlawful, and unconstitutional. There must be a referendum on the part of all the people. The governor says that only the legislature for congress were bound by the results of the referendum, but I question of house policy. I question of the voters was 'shall the prohibition act be re-enacted?' What does congress have to do with the Illinois prohibition act? What has the Illinois legislature to do with the Illinois prohibition act? You find all the people all the time, and I find this new king of Illinois, saying back to his old job, that of private citizen in a downstate town."

Kidnap, Rob
Farmer; Free
Him in Chicago

Henry Brady, 64 years old, a farmer of Ransom, Ill., was kidnaped and taken for a ride to Chicago early yesterday by four bandits, who escaped with $1,115 in cash and Liberty bonds, which the farmer had secreted in his home. Ransom is 120 south of Chicago, near Streator.

Brady told of his experiences with the armed holdup men when he stepped from a Chicago train at Ransom yesterday afternoon.

Falls to Notify Police.

Brady was released by his captors on 105th street yesterday morning at 11 o'clock and given $15 with which to return to his home. Without notifying the Chicago police he started home immediately, arriving at Ransom at 3:30 p. m. to find the village excited over his disappearance. A posse had been formed to search for him in the belief that he had been murdered.

The farmer was kidnaped at dusk Wednesday night on the road four miles east of Ransom and near his farm, where he had been working during the day. He was taken to the farmhouse, where the bandits bound him and threatened him with their guns until he revealed the hiding place of his savings in his village residence. Leaving Brady behind, the bandits went to his home, ransacked every room, and found the money.

Start Ride to Chicago.

They then returned to the farm. Forcing the elderly farmer into an automobile and started the 120 mile trip to Chicago. Brady's brother, John, discovered the home ransacked and his brother missing at noon and instituted an immediate search.

Sheriff E. J. Welter of La Salle county said last night that Brady had recognized the bandits and would be able to identify them.

Chicago police hoped to find the kidnapers through a letter dropped by one of the gang as he let Brady out of the automobile here. Brady said the bandit had picked up the letter after it had dropped from his pocket and tore it into several pieces. Police, putting those pieces together found that the letter had been sent to Bob Gavin, 1103 East 65th street, from Mrs. Joe Miller, 3719 Cass street, Detroit. Police were searching for Gavin.

WOMAN PLUNGES TO DEATH FROM
'BOUL MICH' CLUB

A young woman tentatively identified from cards in her pocket as Miss Ruth S. Gordon of the Virginia hotel, Rush and Ohio streets, plunged to her death early today from the first floor of the Allerton club, 701 North Michigan avenue.

Her body struck on the roof of an inner court at the fourth floor level. The victim was about 25 years old.

Richard Conley, 3116 West Erie street, the night elevator operator at the Allerton club, told Lieut. George De Mar of the East Chicago avenue police that the woman entered the club at 1:30 a. m. and asked to be taken to the 21st floor. Apparently she opened a window, crawled out on the fire escape and leaped to her death. Her body was heard to land a few minutes later.

At the Virginia hotel Lieut. De Mar learned that Miss Gordon had registered on Wednesday, giving her previous address as 312 Wacker drive, presumably an office in which she was employed. When she registered she was apparently without heavy baggage.

In the woman's clothing the police also found a paper bearing the name of N. Thelan, 3846 North Leavitt street, who was to be questioned.

Killer Preston Is Found Sane;
to Die in Chair

A jury of seven men and five women in the Circuit court at Wheaton last night, returned a verdict that condemned John E. Preston, a Chicago interior decorator, to death in the electric chair for the murder of Miss Agnes Johnston, 26 years old, a stenographer whom he killed after a road house party near West Chicago, 18 months ago.

The jury, after six and a half hours of deliberation, found that Preston, a married man, is not insane thus putting in force the sentence for the execution which previously had been set for May 8. Preston was found guilty and sentenced to death in December of 1929. After an appeal to the Illinois Supreme court, had failed, he was granted a sanity hearing and last January a jury at Wheaton adjudged him insane.

That finding meant that instead of being executed, Preston would be sent to the prison for the criminal insane at Menard. However, the state contended the evidence did not support the insanity finding and Judge John H. Newhall granted the re-hearing which ended yesterday afternoon.

Preston was taken into court last night to hear the verdict. As it was read he flushed and then turned pale, but remained silent. His attorney, Eugene McGarry of Chicago, filed a motion for a new trial and Judge Newhall will hear arguments on April 25. Meanwhile Preston was returned to Joliet penitentiary and placed in a death cell.

Roy L. Bassett, an aviator who resides at the Hyde Park Arms hotel, 5316 Harper avenue, accompanied by Leon Morgan, 2917 West 144th place, advertising man, also a flyer, took off from the Elmhurst airport yesterday at noon, bound for Cranston, Wis., 355 miles north of Chicago, to spend the week-end with Bassett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Bassett of Cranston.

At 3 a. m. today the flyers had not reached Cranston and no word had been heard from them. There had been no reports of any airplane accident between Elmhurst and Cranston. The pilot Bassett's father said his son had planned to stop at Sheboygan en route but it was reported at Sheboygan that no plane had landed there yesterday.

POLICE BATTLE
MOBS CHEERING
EXILED MONARCHJoins His Family as Conquering Hero.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

PARIS, April 16.—Alfonso of Spain, a royal exile, arrived here, his chosen city of refuge, at 11 o'clock tonight. It was an ironic spectacle—a monarch seeking refuge in the same foreign capital which had been receiving his rebellious subjects fleeing from his autocratic rule for months and years.

But with a difference. Acclaimed by thousands, more like a conquering hero than a repudiated king, Alfonso stepped off the Cote d'Azur, one of the world's most luxurious trains, contrasting sharply to the furtive, humble arrivals of his republican subjects.

Cries of "Vive le roi" from thousands of throats thundered to the vaulted heights of the Lyons railway station as the fighting little Bourbon descended from a private car.

Saved from Mob.
Alfonso and his suite were saved from being crushed by a mob of his admirers only by a perfectly organized police service—the same French republican police who have been hounding Spanish republican refugees, subjecting them daily to inconvenience and indignity.

The entire journey was so tightly guarded by the French gendarmerie that twenty or more American newspaper men riding on the train from Marseilles, where Alfonso departed from a Spanish warship, had not a ghost of a chance to get near the former king's private car, not even to pass a note to any of its occupants.

French police were zealous on behalf of their royal visitor that they frequently used their fists on the boldest of the newspaper men.

As the train came to a stop at the station several hundred police, led personally by Chief Jean Chippie, were compelled to fight in order to hold off the mob of his cheering admirers.

Hats Fly in Air.

Personal representatives of President Doumergue and Foreign Minister Briand welcomed the exile. Hats went flying, and the mob screamed to the echoing heights. Alfonso, his dapper, jolly somewhat marred by weariness, smiled and waved recognition when he could get his hand up past the pressing throng. The Spanish ambassador slipped as he was pushed by the crowding throng and fell against the train. The terrific pressure of the mob smashed scores of windows in the official reception room of the station, which had been specially decorated for the occasion and where Alfonso was welcomed by the French government's representatives.

Women fainted and men were knocked down in their rush to get a glimpse of Alfonso. By hard work the police managed to get their royal guest outside the entrance and into an automobile. He was taken to the Hotel Maurice, where the exiled Queen Victoria and her five children had been installed on their arrival this morning. They are occupying an entire floor of 25 rooms.

Forced to Appear on Balcony.

But the tumult and shouting was not yet over. A great throng awaited the arrival of the exile at the hotel. Alfonso hastily thanked the police officials for their careful handling of him and disappeared to join his family. But there was a tremendous uproar outside. The great crowd kept

Japanese Fete

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., April 16.—[Special.]—Prince Takamatsu, impressive as an imperial personage in a Japanese print, and his 19-year-old bride, interested as a school girl on holiday, tonight met 2,000 of Washington's diplomats and senators; congressmen and clergymen; government officials and marble-palace widows, as well as a lot of ordinary folks who get around a lot.

Genial Ambassador Deuchel and his Paris-grown wife gave the party in the big ball room of the Mayflower hotel which, for an hour or two, became Japanese territory, with real cherry blossoms and real pre-prohibition refreshments. For one of the royal prerogatives of this traveling prince is that he carries his native soil with him, so far as immunities go.

Diplomats slipped handsomely as they bowed from the waist, while the prince violated Japanese custom and shook hands American fashion.

A Quaint American Custom.

Europeans slipped innocuous, champagne flavored punch at a small table where one waiter leisurely linded out the pale pink drink. Across the room Americans, many of them women, pushed nearer to the large table where four waiters perched as they poured out Scotch and white rock as fast as they could.

And in the center dry senators dabbled with chicken salad and munched sandwiches and tried not to look at the other buffet.

Measured by medals it was a grand party. Gold and silver stars, some of them as big as saucers, glittered on "flat fronts" or dangled from ankles down near the hip. Ribbons of red, ribbons of green, ribbons of purple, and broad ribbons of many colors, stretched across white vests, knotted themselves into rosettes, curved around collars.

Kaleidoscope of Personages.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, Great Britain's six foot three ambassador, bent forward to catch the low spoken words of a tiny Japanese lady. William Jennings Bryan's daughter, Ruth, very chic in black, found something amusing to say wherever she went. Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, co-author of the 18th amendment, greeted friends, but far away from the buffet. Senator Tom Walsh of Montana, like his politics was a step or two nearer, but he ate sandwiches astoundingly. So did the other senatorial Walsh, David L. from Massachusetts.

Vice President Curtis was accompanied by his brother-in-law, Edward Everett Gann. Mrs. Gann is still in the hospital and was unable to come to the party. Secretary of War Hurley was there with his blondly beautiful wife, Petite Senora Davila, wife of the Chilean ambassador, had her hand kissed more frequently than most of the women, it seemed.

And all the guests before they left made a pilgrimage to the book which a bellboy held open on a table amid the palms. Here they inscribed their names. That's so they'll get on the Japanese embassy "list." They liked this party and want to be invited to the next one.

Also Meets the Reporters.

The prince during his stay here has proved a veritable sphinx to reporters. Here's today's reference.

Word goes forth that his imperial highness, Prince Takamatsu, will "meet the press" between 3 and 4 o'clock, in the Pan-American room of the Mayflower hotel, where he and his bride have their suite. The designated sixty minutes slip by, but no prince. Then comes word that the interview will be in the Italian room; no, that's wrong, for that's in the basement.

In the Chinese room, then. That's a worse insult.

At last a Japanese emissary appears, shakes hands all around, reports that his highness is resting.

Six minutes later, the same emissary appears.

BUSINESS TURNS
CORNER, HOOVER
TOLD BY BABSONSays Figures Prove Better Times.

Better Times

WASHINGTON.—Roger W. Babson, economist, tells President Hoover business has "turned the corner" and will gradually improve.

CHICAGO.—Leaders predict improvement of business in Chicago as result of renewal of public confidence under Mayor Cermak.

WASHINGTON.—President Hoover asks further governmental economies with a view to avoiding an increase in federal taxes next year.

Washington, D. C., April 16.—(AP)—Roger W. Babson, business statistician, told President Hoover today he believed business had "turned the corner" and would gradually but slowly improve.

Babson said he based his statement on figures and not on hopes. Car loadings for the last month, he said, have been larger than those of a year ago and employment figures from the labor department have shown an increase for the first time since 1923.

Show Increased Earnings.

A few of the chain stores are showing better earnings not only over last month but over March a year ago. He said, adding certain railroads also have apparently reached the bottom in the decline in earnings.

Babson said his figures did not include the effect the widespread building campaign of the federal government would have on general industry. He added he would not be surprised to see a shortage of labor in some lines before the year ended.

Commodity Prices Down.

He said he did not look for a sharp rise in commodity prices and was not certain the decrease in these prices had ended. He added the last commodity price decline lasted more than forty years.

The business statistician said he did not look for any great increase in business on the stock market, but instead expected the speculative fever to turn to commodities.

"In my opinion," he said, "the public is fed up with stocks and the speculative fever will work itself out in some other way."

OPTIMISM FOR CHICAGO

With A. J. Cermak in the mayor's chair, Chicago has emerged from the recent elections to find its municipal credit improved, its real estate market stimulated, and its commercial outlook enhanced by the prospect of attracting to the city 85 per cent of all national trade conventions to be held in the United States in the world's fair year.

A picture of Chicago on the threshold of a new economic era was presented by a score of business and financial leaders who were interviewed yesterday in an effort to ascertain the effect of the election on business conditions.

Leaders See Improvements.

Three outstanding improvements were noted by these leaders, as follows:

1. Chicago municipal bonds, hitherto a languishing commodity, now show gains ranging from 1/4 point to 2 points, depending on the date of maturity. Bankers interpret the demand for these bonds as an expression of confidence in the Cermak administration on the part of American investors generally.

2. Prospective home builders are exhibiting renewed interest in subdivisions and out of town concerns are once more considering leases for Chicago branches. Mark Levy, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, predicts that if Mr. Cermak fulfills his pledge of clearing up the tax muddle a building boom will be well launched by next winter.

3. The convention bureau of the Chicago Association of Commerce has assured hotel owners that, on the basis of present bookings, 4,000,000 delegates will attend conventions here in 1931, exclusive of the millions of visitors expected for the Century of Progress exposition.

REVEAL THE

BY OSCAR HUNKHAUSER

As a result of the taxes are to be boosted in Park district, even as cent increase in general dues, and also above the cent advance in general dues last December or January upon the action of the board.

The process by which Park increase was brought about is as follows:

The park board, headed by William L. Williams, desires to increase the bonds heretofore has been of the $45,029,369 tax ward district. At the April board submitted the question it should be permitted to raise to the extent of 3 per cent valuation.

Vote on Bond Proposed

On the face of the report approved the proposition of 11,281 to 30,541, 450 votes. An investigation indicated, however, that 458 votes were actually cast. The park district embraces the 40th, 39th and 41st northward side. The 40th and 41st wards may be illustrated to indicate how many votes for the bonding proposal obtained.

The records of the election inspectors' office show that voted in that precinct. The record shows on the same adjacent columns that 188 votes for increasing the bond. The records therefore, showed against it. Thus, 237 recorded on the bond paper the total number of votes was 245.

More Votes than Expected

The records of other more votes cast on the increase than expected. The commissioners thought qualified voters in the precinct.

The boundary lines of the ward through 17 votes part of which was thus registered. Under the law entitled to vote on a proposition who does not live in the ward. One of these "split voting" is the Nineteenth ward. In that part of which is within the park area persons are registered at the election 123 persons opposing the bonding proposition—it a total of 10 registered voters, there are regular ballots on the bond.

Vote Irregularly Split

In the Thirty-ninth ward, Fortleth ward is another case. Within that part outside of the park district 14 registered voters, yet without the park district for the bonding increase against it. That is a total of 113 votes, a surplus of 213.

Other precincts in the Park district are partly within the park district. These are the Forty-ninth, Fiftieth, Fifty-first, Sixty-first, Seventy-first and Seventy-second.

In the Thirty-ninth ward the Tenth and Eleventh precincts have 131 registered voters in the park district. In the precinct 134 persons registered, yet at the April 7 vote for additional bond and 35 against it—a total of 169.

REVEAL VOTING IRREGULARITY ON PARK BOND PLAN

More Votes than Voters
in Some Precincts.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

As a result of the last election, the park board, headed by Frank Williams, desired to issue more park bonds. The limitation on the $100,000,000 tax valuation in the district. At the April 7 election, the board submitted the question whether it should be permitted to issue bonds to the extent of 5 per cent on the tax valuation.

On the face of the returns the people approved the proposition by a vote of 11,331 to 10,541, a majority of 790 votes. An investigation yesterday indicated, however, that some of these 790 votes are legally impossible.

The park district embraces part of the 40th, 39th and 41st wards on the northwest side. The 50th precinct of the 40th ward may be used as an illustration to indicate how some of the votes for the bonding proposition were obtained.

The records of the election commissioners' office show that 265 persons voted in that precinct, yet the same showed shows on the same line in adjacent columns that 188 persons voted for increasing the bonding power of the park commissioners and 97 voted against it. Thus, 237 votes were recorded on the bond panel, although the total number of persons who voted was 265.

More Votes than Voters.

The records of other precincts show more votes cast on the proposal to increase the bonding power of the park commissioners than there are qualified voters in the precinct.

The boundary lines of the park district cut through 17 voting precincts, part of which are thus not in the district. Under the law, no one is entitled to vote on a park proposal who does not live in the park district.

One of these "split voting" precincts is the Nineteenth of the Fourteenth ward. In that part of the precinct which is within the park district 45 persons are registered as voters. In the election 123 persons voted for increasing the bonding power and 17 against it—a total of 140. In that precinct, therefore, there were 60 irregular ballots on the bond proposal.

Vote Irregularity Shown.

In the Thirty-ninth ward, parts of which are in another split voting area, within that part of the precinct inside of the park district are 14 registered voters, yet on April 7, the record shows, 132 persons voted for the bonding increase and 45 against it. That is a total of 177 votes, a surplus of 113.

Other precincts in the Fourteenth ward are partly within and partly without the park district. The two precincts, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth, are permanently represented here.

The suggested two organizations might form a large committee on some subject in which both were interested, hold open hearings, and place their findings on the desk of each member of congress.

Y., April 16.—(AP)—After two years wandering in Canada, a young German, Eric Steinicke, attempted to cross the international peace bridge into the United States by climbing the steel framework of the span. His trip ended as he encountered a section which had no under structure and he was removed from his lofty perch today.

A 150 foot climb down a rope, thrown to him by coast guardsmen, ended the adventure.

Steinicke set off on his journey last midnight. All went well until the unsupported section was reached. Too exhausted to retrace his steps and facing certain death, if he attempted to drop to the river below, Steinicke clung to a girder until dawn brought discovery.

He was held on a charge of illegal entry.

DONOVAN FAVORS OPEN LOBBYING, ECONOMIC FORUM

Washington, D. C., April 16.—(AP)—Creation of an economic forum for open lobbying was proposed tonight by William J. Donovan, former assistant attorney general, in an address before the National League of Women Voters.

Donovan argued that economic groups have become as much a factor in government as political parties. He said they already are permanently represented here.

The suggested two organizations might form a large committee on some subject in which both were interested, hold open hearings, and place their findings on the desk of each member of congress.

FUR SAMMONS LOSES APPEAL FOR FREEDOM

Supreme Court Upholds
Return to Prison.

James [Fur] Sammons, considered one of the most dangerous gunmen of the present day, lost his fight yesterday to be released from the penitentiary. The Illinois Supreme Court in a decision handed down yesterday held that the parole board had the power to terminate Sammons' parole.

Chief Justice McGovern of the Criminal court and State's Attorney Swanson, who were responsible for the recent campaign against gunmen, hoodlums, and racketeers, were pleased with the Supreme court decision and said that it comes at an opportune time to spur on the law enforcing officials in their fight to clean up for the World's Fair.

"Tonic to Crime Drive."

The decision is gratifying and encouraging to the prosecuting authorities," said Mr. Swanson. "It comes as a tonic to those engaged in the fight to rid the city of the criminal element before the World's Fair."

"We put in a lot of work on the Sammons case and had to fight the best of the lawyers engaged in the case. If old charges were hushed before the parole board, it takes time and hard work."

Sammons in 1933 was sentenced to death for murdering a south side saloonkeeper during a robbery. Prior to that time he had ravished a young girl whom he had lured to a switch man's chalet. Because of his youth, it was said, the death sentence for murder was commuted to life imprisonment. Sammons was paroled after many years in the penitentiary and joined the Capone gang.

When the drive started against the criminal element last fall with issuing of vagrancy warrants for the public enemies, Prosecutor Swanson ordered Assistant State's Attorney Harry Ditchburne to search the records to see if old charges could not be resurrected against some of the criminals. The circumstances of Sammons' parole were discovered and the matter taken up with the parole board.

Without any previous announcement Sammons was hustled before Judge McGovern and despite the gangster's protests he was ordered back to the penitentiary. A parole agent was waiting to take him. The authorities estimate that under the sentence Sammons must spend the remainder of his life in prison.

District Attorney Orders Gambling in Reno Stopped

Reno, Nev., April 16.—(AP)—Suspension of open gambling, started recently in Reno after passage of a new state law, has been ordered April 28 by District Attorney Melvin Jepson. The suspension was ordered today because the Reno city council has not passed an ordinance legalizing gambling. The state law requires that applicants can produce a city license. The city council announced last week it would not consider a gambling ordinance prior to a city election to be held May 5.

Law Student's Argument Is a Flop; 10 Days in Jail

Ralph Dudley's interpretation of the law as a law student was all wrong yesterday when he appeared before Judge McIntyre in the Court of Domestic Relations, and he was sentenced to ten days in the Bridgeview reformatory to support his wife, Alice, and their child, Gloria, 16 months old. Dudley pleaded that he was out of work and, in addition, was a law student. These elements, he asserted, exempted him, but Judge McIntyre ruled that Dudley's legal reasoning was unsound.

3 Adrift 13 Days with Can of Corn, 6 Onions and 3 Fish

New York, April 16.—[Special.]—Three men who were rescued at sea after having drifted for thirteen days in a crippled thirty-five foot motor launch, arrived at the Tidewater dock in Bayonne, N. J., aboard the oil tanker Samuel Q. Brown today and told the story of their experience. During their thirteen days adrift they subsisted on one can of corn, six onions, and three fish.

They caught the fish in primitive fashion—appeared them with a nail attached to a stick. There were several rainstorms, and they caught enough drinking water to keep them alive.

The three men are Joseph Robert, 33 years old, and Joseph Knight, 43, both of Key West, Fla., and Carlyle J. Montecino, 30, of Miami. They were picked up on Monday by the Samuel Q. Brown in the Gulf stream, about 400 miles north of Bimini in the Bahamas.

New Boat Breaks Down.

Knight told the story. Montecino had bought a new motor boat with which to start a passenger service between Miami and Bimini. On March 26, the three took six passengers to Bimini. They stayed there several days, hoping to pick up return fares. Falling in this, they started back for Miami late on March 31. When they were half way home the crankshaft of the boat broke, leaving them helpless and adrift.

They had only about half a gallon of water, a can of corn and six onions aboard when the calamity befell them, Knight said. At first they were not worried. They were confident they soon would be picked up.

"But it didn't work out that way," Knight explained. "It rained the second day and we caught about three gallons of fresh water. We ate the corn sparingly. Then we ate the onions. We ran into some rough weather and caught more water in the rain."

When they had been out of food two days the trio decided to try to catch some fish. They rigged up a stick with a nail on the end and tried to spear the fish. It was hard work. All told, they caught only three good sized fish during their thirteen days adrift.

Burn Distress Flare.

As the days and nights passed the men began to burn flares and hung out distress signals. "In the daytime they burned oil soaked blankets."

"Nobody saw us," said Knight, ironically. "Once or twice they did sight a ship and tried vainly to attract its attention. They gained hope in the fact that they were drifting toward the ship lane and felt that if they could hold out long enough they would be rescued."

"Of course we kept fishing, but three fish in that length of time is not much of a catch. We were out of water the night before we were picked up—had been out for two days. Then it rained. It was a regular cloudburst, and we caught about a gallons. That made us feel better. We began to figure that maybe our prayers were being answered and that we'd be kept alive until we drifted to where we'd be picked up."

"Well, we were pretty well all in when the Brown came along and took us aboard."

EXILED ALFONSO REACHES PARIS AS CONQUERING HERO

Saved from Being Crushed by Wild Mob.

yelling: "Show yourself on the balcony." Alfonso heeded the counsel of his advisers and appeared twice on the balcony, bowing and smiling to the throng. The mob was still milling and shouting at midnight and the streets were kept cleared with the greatest of difficulty.

But if the king succeeded in avoiding an interview on his arrival, the queen, who arrived this morning, did not. She admitted wistfully that her husband would stay in France, where he would hopefully await the results of the parliamentary elections in June and from the French capital direct his efforts to regain the relinquished throne for himself or his son.

Exiled Queen Consoled by Queen.
PARIS, April 16.—(AP)—Victoria, the exiled Spanish queen, today received the sympathy and embraces of Elizabeth, reigning queen of the Belgians, in the former's suite of 23 rooms, in the Hotel Meurice, near the Place de la Concorde, where a former queen of France was guillotined.

The meeting between Victoria and Elizabeth, who hurried here from Brussels today to comfort her throneless friend, was dramatic and intense. They embraced and kissed, but there were no tears.

"It was terrible," the Spanish queen said. "But the king has not abdicated. He simply gave over his powers. If he had not done that—O, what would have happened?"

Earlier in the day Victoria had been greeted by shouts of "Long live the queen!" when she arrived in Paris with members of her family. Admirers sent so many flowers to her hotel that an extra room had to be engaged for them. Hundreds of persons called to pay respects, including Gen. Lamson, representing the president of France, and scores of aristocratic exiles from Russia.

Paces Floor; Awaits Alfonso.
When left alone the former Spanish queen could be seen pacing the floor of her salon as she awaited the arrival of Alfonso. Altogether it was a day of great emotion for Victoria from the time she stepped upon the red carpet, reserved for royal visitors, at the Austere station until bedtime tonight. Several times she could not hold back the tears. Thousands cheered for her as she moved gravely through the crowd acknowledging the greeting of Spanish royalists.

The eldest son, Alfonso, the prince of the Asturias, was carried from the station on a stretcher. He suffers from hemophilia, and the strain of the last few days had weakened him. He was confined to his bed tonight.

When she entered the hotel where she and Alfonso had stopped so many times during the days of their power, Queen Victoria seemed somewhat dazed. Tears came again when an aged Spanish woman knelt and kissed her hand.

Attendees reported tonight that the royal family were holding themselves in control, although obviously strained almost to the breaking point. Few of those who came to the hotel were received personally by Victoria. Among the exceptions were three other exiles—Empress Zita of Austria, Grand Duke Dmitri of Russia, and Prince Nicholas of Greece.

Royal Family of Spain Cursed by Disease

Even though revolution had not upset the Spanish dynasty, signs seemed to indicate that the Bourbon rule was approaching its culmination from other causes. In the final days of his reign Alfonso XIII. faced two major disasters; the fatal one of hemophilia without and the possible one of disease within his own family. Yet this monarch refused to admit himself vanquished by either.

Shortly after the birth of his first child, Alfonso, prince of the Asturias, until three days ago heir apparent to the ancient throne, the dread shadow of hemophilia fell across the always rugged pathway of the man already dubbed "last of the Bourbons." Ironically enough, the disease that has sapped the strength of the crown prince all of his 23 years (he had to be carried to an automobile for the fight from Spain) came about through one of the few genuine royal love matches of European kingdoms.

Inherited from Queen Victoria.
Alfonso XIII, delicate of physique, yet healthier than most of his line, consulted his heart rather than his court when, in 1906, he married Princess Victoria Eugenie, daughter of Prince Henry of Battenberg and the Princess Beatrice, a daughter of Queen Victoria of England. Unknowingly, the young queen had inherited from her prim grandmother, through her mother, the strange malady that, emanating from the same source, also struck down the hopes of the late Russian czar and empress through its appearance in their only son, the czarvitch.

Medical science has striven for many years to find either an effective treatment or a cure for this weird affliction, which is transmitted only through females, yet never affects one of them physically. It is cited as perhaps the most vivid example in the world of the power of inherited traits. Its victims suffer from veins so weak that a mere pinprick will cause them to bleed for hours, while the pulling of a tooth could easily be fatal.

The disease is so ancient that a reference is found to it in the Jewish Talmud, in the statement that those who suffered from it were exempt from circumcision because of the danger of their bleeding to death.

Cause Is Unknown.
Medical authorities in Chicago familiar with the sickness said yesterday that, while inbreeding undoubtedly accentuates it, the cause remains unknown. It is comparatively rare, only about 300 cases of it being estimated in this country.

"It is true," one research worker added, "that while hemophilia is active only in males, it is always transmitted through females. Thus, the Spanish princes, Don Jaime and Don Carlos, both undoubtedly carry the malady, though no test to determine its presence is yet known. Should these girls marry, their sons will stand a 75 per cent chance of developing the disease actively. Only a merciful destiny that decrees that several generations sometimes pass without the symptoms showing up can avert that possibility."

Queen Victoria, to whom the illness of the late czarvitch and the present prince of the Asturias is traced by the medical world, was the mother of nine children, their father being the Prince Consort Albert of the house of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. Evidences of the disease are found in the Coburg line, although it would not have been inherited through Albert by his children.

Another Son Deaf Mute.

Just as one daughter among the nine, Princess Beatrice, is believed to have transmitted hemophilia to the family of Alfonso XIII, another daughter, the Princess Alice, mother of the late Czarina Alexandra, is credited with having passed it on to the last of the Russian royalty.

While the consistently feeble health of the prince of the Asturias seemed to preclude the possibility that he could ever succeed to the throne, and the hopes and plans of his father were still further crushed in the fact that his second son, Don Jaime, was born a deaf mute, there still remained to Alfonso the consolation that his two younger boys, Don Juan and Don Gonzalo, never had shown any trace of the ailment and apparently were quite physically capable of carrying on the Bourbon name and fame.

Curse May Still Appear.

Neither of the two could have acceded to the throne without the voluntary renunciation of his elders. And physicians say it is not yet too late for the family curse to manifest itself.

As recently as November of 1930, Jay Allen, Tribune correspondent, stated in a series of articles on Spain that the health of the royal family had long been made the topic of brutal snipes and jests among the people, and that the desirability of the marriage of the king "was discussed coldly for years as desirable."

CATALONIA LONG A THORN IN SIDE OF SPAIN'S KINGS

Fought for Years to Win Freedom.

In their long period of insurgency against the Spanish government the Catalonians have repeated the history of Ireland in its relation to Great Britain prior to the establishment of the Irish Free State. Catalon is a former ally sought to be separate—and self-governed.

But last night an accord was reached between this region and the republic of Spain, which created the "Catalan state of the Spanish republic."

Lyons, along the east coast of Spain and separated physically from the remainder of the country by a mountain range from 5,000 to 8,000 feet high, the history and the language of Catalon differs from the nation in general. Just as the physique and temperament of its people differ from that of the Castilian, the Andalusian, and the Basque.

Formed Early Confederacy.

During the middle ages the Catalonians, which include a few islands off the mainland, formed a confederacy independent of Spain. While the central plateau, beyond the mountains, is for the most part a barren, endless plain, the Catalonians have a hilly, with rich and fertile plains bordering the sea.

From the sixteenth century to the beginning of the eighteenth, practically the only connection that existed between Catalon and Spain was a common king. Catalon kept a separate government and a separate parliament. Several wars were fought in the Catalonians' attempt to sever the bond. From that day to this, Catalon has always been a thorn in the side of the Spanish rulers, a territory in which revolt flared easily and often, and where the head that wore the crown lay even more uneasy than anywhere else.

Fought Wars for Freedom.

One of the attempts of the Catalonians to throw off the Spanish yoke is known as the Separation war, fought from 1640 to 1656. It was followed by the Spanish Succession war, which ended with the assault and recapture of Barcelona by the army of Philip V. In 1714 and his proclamation of conquest over the area. Since then, especially during the last 30 years, Catalon has repeatedly expressed the desire for home rule, but always was refused.

The area of the Catalonian countries is larger than that of Belgium, Holland, Denmark, and Estonia and somewhat smaller than Ireland and Latvia. Its population, by the 1930 census, was 4,393,000.

SPAIN MOVES TO TRY EXILED KING AS A CRIMINAL

Republic Asks Accounting for Alleged Misdeeds.

BY JAY ALLEN.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
MADRID, April 16.—The Spanish republic tonight is meditating its answer to the departed Bourbon's veiled threat to return.

It is possible that this answer will take the special form of a trial, and that some time hence Bourbon, who declared that he would come back, is still king of Spain.

He will be tried for his misdeeds, which are meant certain acts, particularly of the last decade of his reign, which hurried the end of his reign. They now have been qualified as criminal.

Angry at Exiled King.

The provisional government, it is learned, is intensely annoyed at Alfonso's refusal to sign a renunciation of his rights, and considers his last statement a provocation. It has announced a monster process to fix the responsibility for the dictatorship of the late Gen. Primo de Rivera, and is at the point of putting the blame on Alfonso.

They would try him for this, which has been termed a "crime against the Spanish nation."

They would also try him for the part which they allege he played in the Moroccan disaster of 1921, when more than 10,000 Spanish troops were slain.

It may also be tried for certain business deals in which many Republicans, including Indalecio Prieto, now minister of finance, openly accuse him of having shared in the profits and for having carried off a large number of treasures belonging to the Spanish nation. Royal palaces outside of Madrid are being searched, as the government has heard that in the months after December the king sent truckloads of valuables to London regularly.

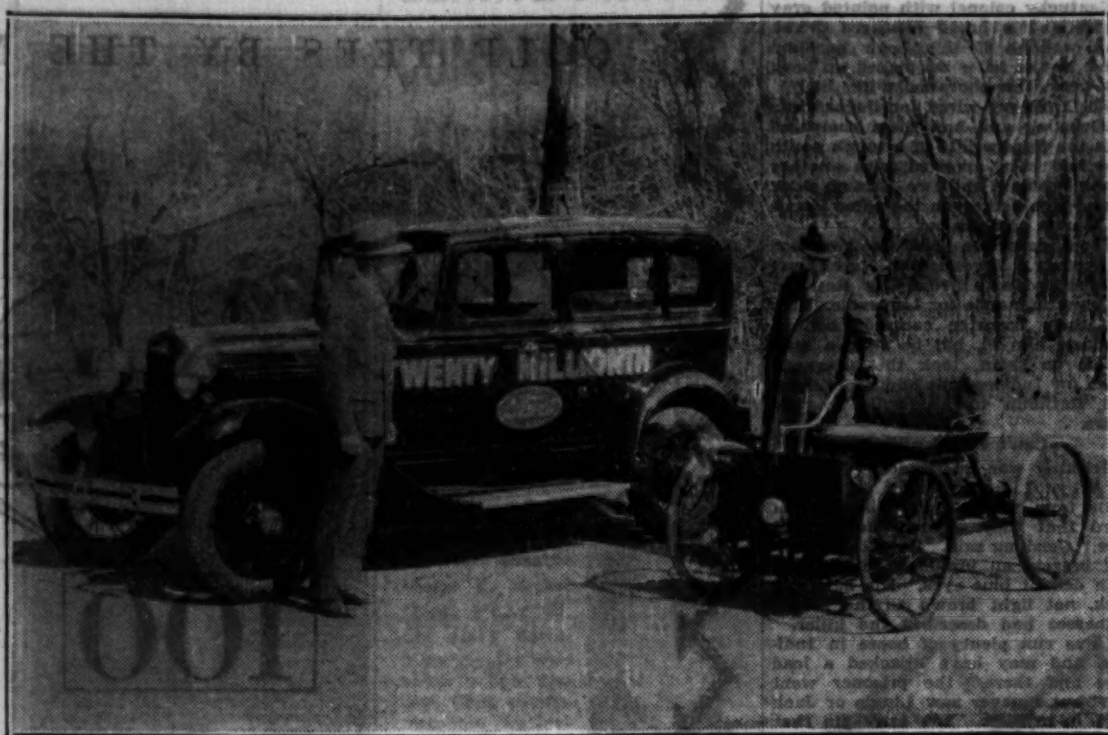

Hope to Ruin King Forever.

By such a trial, the two fiercest ministers of the new republic hope to ruin him forever in the eyes of the Spaniards on whom he seems to want to make possible the change of heart he predicts.

The most serious menace to the life of the republic was scotched when Col. Francisco Macia, provisional president of Catalonia, and President Alcala Zamora, resulted an agreement in the state of Catalonia in the federal state that Spain once was.

The insistence of certain Catalan leaders in Col. Macia's entourage for a Catalan Free State, like the Irish Free State, was until tonight consistent with the desire to prevent disaster. Spanish officials in the Barcelona government met today and offered allegiance to Madrid if the Catalans stuck to their guns. Great anxiety was felt in some quarters, although the Catalan dream of independence is mooted by even most Catalans as almost unworkable.

Accord Reached.

But tonight an accord was reached after hours of telephone conversations between Madrid and Barcelona, and tomorrow morning posters, announcing the formation of a Catalan republic, will be replaced by others heralding the birth of the "Catalan state of the Spanish republic."

President Zamora remarked tonight that juridical freedom was Catalonia's as far as she wanted it, but that federal independence could hardly be accorded to a region, which contributes about one-third of the national income. He revealed that the republic hopes that Spaniards living in South America and even South American nations, will be represented in the Spanish parliament to represent to Spain her "spiritual primacy" in the Hispanic world.

The bulk of the government's program will be accomplished by decree. It has been learned that Fernando de los Rios, Socialist minister of justice, has agreed upon a formula with the papal nuncio for the separation of church and state. The details are not known, but it is indicated that the government, although no longer of his Catholic majority, has nevertheless been lenient.

An Act of Tyranny.

A hint that the government intends to accomplish its reforms by decree, brought a protest from El Debate, Catholic organ, today.

"Let the government take care of matters of pressing interest and look to its own safety of course, but not until its title is legitimized by an election can it introduce these modifications without abusing its power."

President Zamora in an interview today refused to state when elections would be called, but it is now believed that, if they are held in June, a constitutional assembly can be convened before autumn.

Spain Becomes Normal.

Spain went back to humdrum normality yesterday after the day of revolution and a night and day of feverish celebration. Even the diehards admit that it has been a model revolution, as revolutions go.

Another fierce outburst of enthusiasm, however, shattered Madrid tonight when Mañá Ramon Franco, transatlantic flyer, returned from exile. Fifteen thousand people roared a welcome to the little aviator, who has become the hero of his people particularly since his rôle in the ill-fated December revolution. They carried him and Gen. Queipo del Llano, now captain-general of Madrid, on their shoulders in triumph.

Inside the palace of the Bourbons tonight there is the desolation of tomes. For the first time in many years no mass was said in its chapel. The servants, most of whom are gone by now, were provided with a month's pay by the king—his last act on leaving. Only the halberdiers remain, wondering, no doubt, if they are to be the president's guards, and twenty republican guards. The two groups get along well together, the halberdiers serving their "guests" coffee and cherries from their buffet.

Plan Inventory of Riches.

Gen. Blanco, director of Madrid's security, made the first inspection of the Spanish seal of kings today. He took special care to see that none was living in the apartments of whom the papers tonight call "Señor Bourbon and family." They will not be entered until an inventory of the deposed family's property, valued at millions, is taken in the presence of the king's overcoat.

The king's 30-year-old aunt, Infanta Isabella, today was informed for the first time of Alfonso's flight. It could not be kept from her any longer. She took it calmly, having long predicted that her nephew, with his unconstituted ways, was riding to a fall. Queen Victoria, before her departure for Paris, asked Infanta Beatrice of Orleans, sister of Queen Marie of Romania, to stay and look after the princess. The king's uncle, Infante Don Carlos, today resigned his post as inspector general of the navy.

By decree tonight the government abolished senators, who held office for life, nobility, churchmen and the like, thus severing the last official connection of the aristocracy with the Spanish state. The appointment tonight of Senorita Victoria Kent, one of a half dozen women lawyers in Spain, and defender of one of the conspirators against the monarchy in their recent trial, as director of prisons, presaged a new place in the sun for Spanish women.

Catalan President Talks.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
BARCELONA, Spain, April 16.—In the presidential palace in the Catala republic, surrounded by a guard of youths with burning eyes like his own, Col. Francisco Macia, newly proclaimed president of Catalonia, gave this Tribune his first interview today.

The lean old soldier, who was laughed at as a Don Quixote when he led his little band against the might of the Spanish crown not so many years ago, spoke proudly as chief of what came close to being a new nation to further check the map of Europe.

"The Catalan state is assured," he said. "I have always had such confidence in the Catalan people that I do not doubt that they will manage to conserve the liberty which they have just won."

But, lest this be mistaken as a threat, he smiled and continued: "The Spanish officers have put themselves completely under my orders and their conduct is admirable. Order will be maintained, and, although there will inevitably be incidents, I will have nothing to do with communists."

His Attitude to Madrid.

Touching on his attitude towards Madrid, Col. Macia said, a little vaguely: "My relations with the president of the Spanish republic are cordial."

It became apparent even to the hot-heads in Col. Macia's new civic guard late today that, with the police and civil guards and the Barcelona garrison loyal to Madrid and the ideal of a federal republic, a Catalan free state did not have a chance. Hope collapsed before the public knew its full extent. A roundup of agitators and anarchists, whose mutual assassinations marked the first 48 hours of the republic, will now begin.

Ex-Premier in Portugal.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LISBON, Portugal, April 16.—Gen. Damazo Berenguer, former premier of Spain, arrived in Lisbon this morning. It is reported that Gen. Berenguer will take refuge in Cuba after a trip to New York. Several riots instigated by Spanish republican sympathizers were suppressed by police here today.

WILLARD HOSPITAL GIVEN RESPIRATOR; 3D PLACED IN USE

The third "iron lung" to be placed in operation in a hospital in the Chicago area was presented last night to the Frances E. Willard hospital, 625 South Central avenue, making this service available to citizens of the west side. Artificial respirators within the last year have been given to St. Luke's hospital on the south side and to St. Francis hospital in Evanston.

The "iron lung," officially known as the Drinker respirator, was the gift of the Chicago Rapid Transit company, the Commonwealth Edison company, and the Public Service company of Northern Illinois. The presentation took place following a banquet at the hospital for the board of trustees and guests.

NEW YORK NEWS LEADS RACE OF TRIBUNE BOATS

As the race between two TRIBUNE paper carrying vessels, the Thorold and the New York News, continued across Lake Erie yesterday it appeared that the News would win the honor of being the first to land its cargo in Chicago.

The News, under the command of Capt. F. V. McIntyre, sailed into the lead early yesterday. Before noon it was one mile ahead of its rival, 40 miles east of Southeast Shoals across Lake Erie from Sandusky, O. It continued to add to that lead and last night had gained twelve miles on the Thorold, which is commanded by Capt. George Ferguson.

The News was ahead when it passed Amherstburg, Ont., in the Livingston channel last night at 6:10 p. m. The Thorold was reported to have passed that point at 7:30. Both were headed for Detroit, but there was a question whether they would attempt a night voyage through Lake St. Clair and the St. Clair river into Lake Huron, as navigation lights and buoys have not all been placed along this channel since the recent opening of navigation.

The Thorold, a motor vessel and the flagship of the News fleet of lake boats, is carrying a heavier load than the News, which is a steamship.

TED GEISKING— A FALSE SCENT IN LINGLE CASE

Indiana Gangster Caught
After Long Chase.

Thirteenth installment of "The Solution of the Lingle Murder."

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Hot trails and cold. The investigators of the Lingle murder case followed many trails that from the first had seemed hopeless. But they had to be followed, however faint the prospects of success.

The thrilling chase was those along the hot trail—the trails of Zuta and Dillard and Forsythe, and some of the others. Along these the scent of the killer seemed unmistakable. And then came the information which sent the Lingle sleuths along a cooler trail, and here was excitement, alertness, and a feeling of certainty that at last the investigators were on the right track.

Wild Gang of Outlaws.

The search led into the doings of a wild gang of outlaws who had preyed upon Indianapolis, bootlegging, robbing banks, murdering, and so on. This was the Trauma gang, headed by Joe and Blanche Trauma, and Joe Trauma should be remembered as the man arrested in Chicago with members of the north side gang, the "man" who gave his name as "Anderson," and concerning whom the grapevine had said:

"Look into that little fellow, Anderson. He knows something about that Lingle job."

This time the information also involved Trauma, but not so much as it did another, Ted Geisking, one of the wildest of the wild young bucks of the Trauma gang.

A Clue from a Newspaper.

A reporter from one of the Chicago newspapers came to the FBI office one day late in July, and he told the chief investigator that his newspaper had received information concerning the Lingle case.

He produced a reproduction of a "guy" gallery picture of a young man, and he asked that the picture be shown to eye witnesses to the Lingle killing. He would not reveal to Roche the name of the suspect, but he declared that the youth pictured was probably the killer himself, and he dropped the hint that the man was a member of the Indiana underworld. Roche showed the picture to witnesses, and they declared there was a resemblance between the man shown and the slayer of Lingle.

Refuses to Reveal Name.

Will the reporter who had brought in the picture refused to disclose the name of the suspect. He said he and other reporters on the staff of his newspaper were at work investigating the angle.

Thompson Investigator Roche gave the picture to George Reedy, the Tribune reporter who was now permanently assigned as an investigator to work under the direction of Rathbun and Roche. Reedy was directed to go to Terre Haute and make efforts to identify the picture. In a few days Reedy reported to Roche, in writing, as follows:

"Upon arrival in Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 1 immediately called upon a Mr. X, who until recently chaperoned many 'loads' [of bootleg liquor] from Chicago, Chicago Heights, Gary, etc., for himself and others. The following information was obtained:

"The picture was identified as Theodore Geisking, known as 'Thee,' companion and member of a mob composed of Joe and Blanche Trauma, Tommy Fagan, Jackie Bell, and Edward O'Hara of St. Louis, and Gale Harrod of Louisville, Ky. Lawrence Hyatt, 'Babe' Sheets, John H. Gauley of Indianapolis, and Ramon Record, Fred Ketterer of Terre Haute, Ind., and others.

He Gets Information.

"Mr. X then told me to see Joe Dreher, sheriff of Vigo county, at the jail there. I called on Dreher and he told me that he was not sure, but that he might have seen the man. Thomas Dallas, could supply me with more information. Dallas was agreeable and brought out a prisoner there doing a bit for liquor law violation, and the prisoner was very talkative.

"He said, after viewing the picture, that it was the picture of a fellow who was brought to the home of Fred Ketterer in Terre Haute, Aug. 4, Trauma immediately after the Lingle affair in Chicago. He was supposed to be under cover for about two days, as far as the prisoner knew. Ketterer is at present in Leavenworth penitentiary, along with Joe Trauma, and the prisoner tells me that Ketterer will talk and Trauma will also speak under proper circumstances.

Go to Indianapolis.

"I was then advised to proceed to Indianapolis, Ind., upon arrival in the evening of Aug. 7, I registered at the Washington hotel.

Received information positively identifying the picture in my possession as Theodore Geisking, along with the word that he had resided in Indianapolis that same day, after several months' absence. I then verified the fact that Geisking had appeared at Belmont and Howard streets, West Indianapolis, about 5:30 p. m., Aug. 4. News Zuta killing was the night of Aug. 1, at Desha, Wis. I then learned that Theodore was in a cream colored coupe, license number 454-483, Ind., and a fellow known as John Gauley was his companion, and driven.

"I then learned that he was in connection with Lawrence Hyatt, Dave Dodge and 'Babe' Sheets, also of Indianapolis. I later picked up Dave Dodge in a new Ford touring car. I used a pretext and he admitted to me that the car was not 'hot' [stolen] but really belonged to Lawrence Hyatt and Theodore Geisking. Jointly, they having paid cash for it to a dealer in Indianapolis.

Tells of Kidnapping.

"Dodge also told me that he, Lawrence Hyatt and Theodore had kidnapped a man, his wife and child, out of St. Louis about June 1930, and after driving them as far as St. Louis, Tenn., they put them out, and a few hours later hijacked a load of whisky, 40 cases, and in a rumpled that followed meeting the staff, and one of his aides, Dodge was forced to attend his Ford roadster, which he immediately telephoned his wife to report

FALSE SCENT LED TO THEM

Joe Trauma, member of the gang to which Geisking also belonged. The same false leads seemed to connect him with the Lingle murder, but not so strongly as they appeared to incriminate Geisking. Trauma also is in prison.

as having been stolen from Indianapolis.

"They beat it back here to West Indianapolis and I ran into Dodge the day after his arrival here. After interrogation, Dodge told me that Geisking was around and his closest friend, Lawrence Hyatt, had been taken to the St. Francis hospital, Beach Grove, with a burst appendix and that Theodore would call there to see him.

Police on Guard at Hospital.

"After leaving Dodge, I hurried to the hospital, where I learned that Theodore had been there and left a half hour previously. The sister in charge of the floor—Hyatt occupied room 202 under the name of Joseph Hill—identified the picture of Geisking as a visitor, also the clerk in the office identified his picture. I then had the chief of detectives place a detail at the hospital in case Geisking should come back. He didn't.

"When passing Dodge's home the next day I saw a new Ford coupe in front of the place and Dodge and a companion sitting on the porch. Dodge anticipated me and came out to stall me on the sidewalk, but I beat him to it and called his friend to me and told him to get in the car. He told me his name was 'Babe' Sheets and on a pretext I learned from him that he had seen Theodore only a few hours before and he claimed that he had then on his way to Louisville, or Chicago, he wasn't sure which. I got little information of him, so I left him there."

HAS NARROW ESCAPES

Narrow escapes for Geisking, and in the weeks that followed it seemed that the young hoodlum led a charmed life. He was always missing capture by a half hour. The homes of the known associates of Geisking were put under surveillance, his pals were trailed, and it appeared as if he would be trapped, but always he slipped through the searchers' fingers and was gone.

On Aug. 13 Roche sent one of his own investigators, George (Doc) Williams, to Indianapolis to join Reedy, and Roche permitted the reporter who had brought in the picture, and who by this time had been informed by Roche that the suspect's name and his record were known, to join Williams and Reedy in the search.

The confidential reports of Williams gave a history of the amazing operations of the Trauma gang, as they were described to the investigators by stool pigeons and the Indiana police. The principal occupation of the gang, it appeared, was hijacking, the most serious of gangster enterprises. They would patrol the roads, watching for house shipments to come smoking through and then would swarm upon the convoys, leveling machine rifles, mowed off shotguns, and a machine gun. Frequently they wounded and killed men who resisted, the Williams report stated.

Bare Actions of Gang.

"They played no favorites, taking anybody's load, and they had an immediate market for the stuff," the report read. "Later they got to covering stills and they would hijack the stuff after a long would get away from the still, operating on roads 41 and 82 around Kentland, Attica, Williamsport, Covington, Veedersburg, Terre Haute, and Clinton, Ind.

"Then, after Joe and Blanche Trauma went to the penitentiary, Theodore and Alex Geisking were put in with some of the Louisville mob. They then had a straight route, Chicago to Louisville. Theodore and his mob at this time headed up a long haul from the east, a gambling joint at Williamsport, Ind."

And then the name of Jack Zuta was dropped to the investigators. The name of this wily gangster was echoed now in the dreams of the men on the Lingle staff. It cropped up everywhere.

"Lone Wolf" Found Dead.

"About the middle of January, this year," Williams reported, "Jack Zuta, known in Williamsport as 'The Wolf,' was meeting liquor through this section and west. The 'Lone Wolf,' Orlando Horton, was hijacking this stuff. After a conference at Rice's between Zuta and the Indiana gang the 'Lone Wolf' was found in a dead, dead, dead. Finally the Lingle investigators were informed, through a supposedly reliable source which they had contacted in Indianapolis, of a sensational story which buoyed their hopes higher still, and this was the tale, as reported to Roche by Williams:

"June 2, 1930, Theodore and his mob met at Rice's place, Williamsport. Jack Zuta, known as 'The Wolf,' was there, and he was accompanied by two companions from Chicago, one of whom answers the description of Sally Vision.

Propositioned for "Bump Off."

"Theodore was propositioned by Zuta to bump off a fellow who was threatening to expose his (Zuta's) activities and beat up some of his capers and acts in Chicago. Theodore was given $10,000. Five grand ($5,000) was to get the balance, after the job was completed.

"The car that was used in the Lingle job was hid in Chicago for several days, and then after the job was brought back to Attica, Ind. Informant states that previous to above job Zuta had ordered and paid Theodore to bump off a fellow who had double crossed Zuta in the gambling racket. Theodore and his mob went out on the road near Kentland. They did not get the right fellow, but succeeded in killing a man named William Simons, a Chicago broker, in error. Simons was shot in the back of the head and near the body a single action pistol was found. Theodore a few weeks before had purchased this same pistol in a pawn shop on Indiana avenue, Indianapolis. [A coroner's jury had decided that Simons, who was a prominent Hoosier and had been for many years a member of the Chicago Board of Trade, had committed suicide, but a noted Chicago pathologist conducted a post-mortem on Simons' body, producing evidence which showed the victim's wounds could not have been suicidal.]

Gambling Place Is Closed.

"Two days after the shooting of Lingle in Chicago, the gambling place in Williamsport, Rice's, was closed and has been closed since."

The search for Geisking became a real manhunt then, and it was intensified even more because of a development in Chicago. A lawyer had sent word to Roche and Rathbun that the long sought Red Forsythe had wearied of his game of hide and seek, and decided to surrender.

Hall Him as Slayer.

The reports varied, but one of the prisoners was said to be Theodore Geisking. Immediately some of the newspapers, but not THE TRIBUNE, published excited stories hailing Geisking as the slayer of Lingle.

Roche's investigators dashed by automobile to London, where they learned some of Geisking's pals had been caught, but Geisking was not in custody. It was thought he had been the hijacker who escaped. Another close shave for Geisking, the investigators thought.

But meanwhile in Louisville Chief of Detectives M. Rex Yarberry chanced to glance over the stories about Geisking and he noticed a picture of the Hoosier hoodlum.

"Him," mused the detective chief, "a Kentucky colonel with pointed gray goatee and a broad southern drawl. 'Ah, wonder if this heath hoodlum can't be the fellow we picked up last week. He sure looks like 'im.'"

Col. Yarberry wired for fingerprints of Geisking and had them compared with the fingerprints of a tough youth who had been arrested with another young hoodlum and two girls on Sept. 13 and who had given the name Emerald Harris of Chicago.

The fingerprints jibed! Geisking was in custody. Investigator Roche was notified and with Prosecutor Rathbun left by automobile for Louisville by two hours.

Can't Be Identified.

Geisking was questioned. "Why, I never heard of Lingle until four weeks ago, when I got word that they wanted me in this case," Geisking said. He showed himself brash, an untamed young thug with defiant blue eyes. His hair was dark, not light brown as the Lingle witnesses had described the killer.

"I've run plenty of houses in Indiana, and may have hijacked a load here and there," the prisoner went on, "but I never saw Lingle or Jack Zuta in my life. You can't pin that on me."

Two witnesses to the Lingle murder arrived in Louisville the next day and both without hesitation repeated the old story of the Williamsport house.

"He is not the man," Geisking was sent to the Indiana prison at Pendleton.

A month later the Tribune reporter, in Indianapolis on another phase of the Lingle investigation, learned that the information concerning the supposed meeting of Jack Zuta and Geisking in Williamsport had come originally from a woman who had posed as the former wife of a prominent Indianapolis physician. She had told a tale of being obsessed with a mania for gambling, that she had played the Williamsport resort and there came to enjoy the confidence of the gangsters, who were supposed to have unbundled their hearts to her. It was just another fairy tale.

town hotel, and later he was questioned by Rathbun, Roche, and MoShane.

"Red" Has Black Hair.

"Where did you get the name of 'Red'?" was the first question, and it was an obvious one, because Forsythe's hair was almost jet black and had no trace of red in it.

"How do I know?" the suspect asked in turn. "Nobody ever called me that until I got jammed up in this thing. Some newspaper guy pinned it on me, I suppose."

"Why don't you bring in the witnesses? They'll tell you I'm not the guy you want and you can let me go." Forsythe kept reiterating this demand throughout the day, although he answered questions with fair readiness.

He declared that his name was really James Fawcett, and he said that it must have been some policeman's error that gave him the name of Forsythe when he was arrested, along with Gorman, for carrying concealed weapons. He didn't bother to correct the mistake, Fawcett said, he claimed an alibi for the time of the Lingle murder.

Sick on Day of Murder.

"I was home, sick on the day Lingle was killed," he said. "My wife was with me all day long. I'm sure of the day because June 8 happened to be my second wedding anniversary."

An investigation revealed that this last statement was true. Although there was no particular rule against committing murder on a wedding anniversary, it seemed rather unlikely that even a gangster would murder on that kind of a day. At any rate, Fawcett stuck to his story. He admitted working for Gorman, and declared he had not seen Gorman since the time of Lingle's murder.

Several witnesses were summoned, enough to be certain of no mistake, and they all declared that Forsythe, or Fawcett, was not the man.

"He is not the man," the phrase was getting deadly monotonous. When would some one say: "He is the man!"

Noonan Is Also Quizzed.

Willie Noonan was also questioned at this time and nothing could be learned from or about him concerning the Lingle crime. Gorman never has been found; the earth seemed to have swallowed him up.

The grape vine had failed again. It was a vine that grew sour grapes. And now where were the investigators in their search for the slayer of Lingle? What clues were left? What suspects uncaught? Back and forth through the mountains of clues, theories and reports and only one gleam of light.

On the night of the day that the witnesses said "no" about Forsythe, which was on Sept. 14, Roche received a telephone message from Investigator Williams. Four Indiana gangsters had hijacked a load of liquor in the Cumberland mountains, near London, Ky., and later three of the hijackers were captured by a sheriff's posse. The gangsters had made a show of resistance to the sheriff, and a gun battle was started but the hijackers surrendered when one of their machine guns jammed.

HEAR BROTHERS' NEW TRIAL PLEA IN COURT TODAY

Judge Joseph Sabath in the Criminal court is scheduled to rule today on the motion for a new trial for the Y. Brothers, convicted of the murder of Alfred Lingle. It was indicated by the defense attorneys yesterday that they will seek a continuance.

Attorney Barratt O'Hara, who has recently joined Attorneys Louis P. Quitt and Tyrrell Krum, and Harry Cantwell of St. Louis, in the defense of Brothers, is reported to be prepared to ask for time to familiarize himself with the case and to be allowed to seek new evidence.

The state's attorney's office is prepared to oppose any continuance motion unless it is based on legal grounds. Assistant State's Attorney John Holman is expected to handle the new trial motion for the state.

When the verdict fixing Brothers' punishment at 14 years in prison was returned by the jury two weeks ago Judge Sabath indicated that he was granting two weeks to the defense attorneys to prepare their motions so that they would not ask for a continuance.

But meanwhile in Louisville Chief of Detectives M. Rex Yarberry chanced

to glance over the stories about Geisking and he noticed a picture of the Hoosier hoodlum.

"Him," mused the detective chief, "a Kentucky colonel with pointed gray goatee and a broad southern drawl. 'Ah, wonder if this heath hoodlum can't be the fellow we picked up last week. He sure looks like 'im.'"

Col. Yarberry wired for fingerprints of Geisking and had them compared with the fingerprints of a tough youth who had been arrested with another young hoodlum and two girls on Sept. 13 and who had given the name Emerald Harris of Chicago.

The fingerprints jibed! Geisking was in custody. Investigator Roche was notified and with Prosecutor Rathbun left by automobile for Louisville by two hours.

Can't Be Identified.

Geisking was questioned. "Why, I never heard of Lingle until four weeks ago, when I got word that they wanted me in this case," Geisking said. He showed himself brash, an untamed young thug with defiant blue eyes. His hair was dark, not light brown as the Lingle witnesses had described the killer.

"I've run plenty of houses in Indiana, and may have hijacked a load here and there," the prisoner went on, "but I never saw Lingle or Jack Zuta in my life. You can't pin that on me."

Two witnesses to the Lingle murder arrived in Louisville the next day and both without hesitation repeated the old story of the Williamsport house.

"He is not the man," Geisking was sent to the Indiana prison at Pendleton.

A month later the Tribune reporter, in Indianapolis on another phase of the Lingle investigation, learned that the information concerning the supposed meeting of Jack Zuta and Geisking in Williamsport had come originally from a woman who had posed as the former wife of a prominent Indianapolis physician. She had told a tale of being obsessed with a mania for gambling, that she had played the Williamsport resort and there came to enjoy the confidence of the gangsters, who were supposed to have unbundled their hearts to her. It was just another fairy tale.

town hotel, and later he was questioned by Rathbun, Roche, and MoShane.

"Red" Has Black Hair.

"Where did you get the name of 'Red'?" was the first question, and it was an obvious one, because Forsythe's hair was almost jet black and had no trace of red in it.

"How do I know?" the suspect asked in turn. "Nobody ever called me that until I got jammed up in this thing. Some newspaper guy pinned it on me, I suppose."

"Why don't you bring in the witnesses? They'll tell you I'm not the guy you want and you can let me go." Forsythe kept reiterating this demand throughout the day, although he answered questions with fair readiness.

He declared that his name was really James Fawcett, and he said that it must have been some policeman's error that gave him the name of Forsythe when he was arrested, along with Gorman, for carrying concealed weapons. He didn't bother to correct the mistake, Fawcett said, he claimed an alibi for the time of the Lingle murder.

Sick on Day of Murder.

"I was home, sick on the day Lingle was killed," he said. "My wife was with me all day long. I'm sure of the day because June 8 happened to be my second wedding anniversary."

An investigation revealed that this last statement was true. Although there was no particular rule against committing murder on a wedding anniversary, it seemed rather unlikely that even a gangster would murder on that kind of a day. At any rate, Fawcett stuck to his story. He admitted working for Gorman, and declared he had not seen Gorman since the time of Lingle's murder.

Several witnesses were summoned, enough to be certain of no mistake, and they all declared that Forsythe, or Fawcett, was not the man.

"He is not the man," the phrase was getting deadly monotonous. When would some one say: "He is the man!"

Noonan Is Also Quizzed.

Willie Noonan was also questioned at this time and nothing could be learned from or about him concerning the Lingle crime. Gorman never has been found; the earth seemed to have swallowed him up.

The grape vine had failed again. It was a vine that grew sour grapes. And now where were the investigators in their search for the slayer of Lingle? What clues were left? What suspects uncaught? Back and forth through the mountains of clues, theories and reports and only one gleam of light.

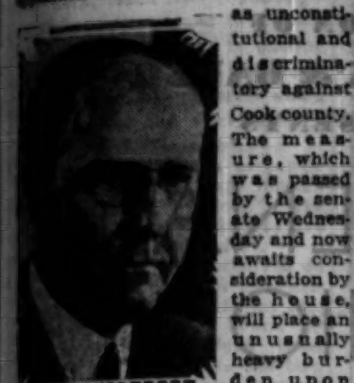

On the night of the day that the witnesses said "no" about Forsythe, which was on Sept. 14, Roche received a telephone message from Investigator Williams. Four Indiana gangsters had hijacked a load of liquor in the Cumberland mountains, near London, Ky., and later three of the hijackers were captured by a sheriff's posse. The gangsters had made a show of resistance to the sheriff, and a gun battle was started but the hijackers surrendered when one of their machine guns jammed.

as an unconstitutional and discriminatory measure against Cook county. The measure, which was passed by the senate Wednesday and now awaits consideration by the house, will place an unusually heavy burden upon Cook county residents, it was asserted.

"The bill is not constitutional and it means the imposition of an extra tax upon people already afflicted with burdensome taxes," said Elias M. Strawn, chairman of the citizens committee, which helped to extricate Chicago from a financial stranglehold a year ago. "It is an unjust measure which taxes the people of Cook county in an unequal manner."

"I favor a proper income tax to replace other present taxes, but there is no intention in this law to take the place of other taxes. I don't see how it can be passed under our constitution. It will benefit downtown but will be very prejudicial to Chicago and Cook county, where most of the big business are."

Opposed by Melvin Traylor.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, also declared that he was decidedly opposed to passage of the bill.

"My own feeling," he said, "is that the ultimate solution of the financial problems of the state will come from a classification of properties with a tax on personal property differing from the tax on real estate in addition to an income tax which is properly safeguarded, as the present one is not."

A statement in behalf of the Chicago Association of Commerce was issued by Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president. The association will protest passage of the law for several reasons, chief among them being the killing of domestic securities in addition to an income tax which is properly safeguarded, as the present one is not.

This Issue of Securities.

"The proposed law, although modified after the federal law, allows such lower deductions as well as lower different rates," said Col. Randolph. "Also the federal law exempts tax securities issued by the states or political divisions thereof, while this pending law exempts only United States government securities and Illinois securities. All securities of other states are taxable and this would have a serious effect on banking practice."

At the Chicago real estate board, E. H. Haylett, acting as spokesman for the members, said that most realtors were opposed to the bill in its present form. He said a number of amendments were desirable, especially a clause which would allow real estate taxes to be deductible from the income tax.

DRY'S CAPTIVE
RESTAURATEUR

Years ago George Kramer's restaurant at 35th street and Cottage Grove avenue was the gathering place of many politicians and sportsmen, and he was reputed at that time to be worth half a million dollars.

Yesterday it was disclosed that the chef arrested on Wednesday in a restaurant at 1224 East 47th street, where a small quantity of liquor was found, was the same George Kramer. Charles Mandel, proprietor of the restaurant; James Melis, a waiter; and Kramer were held in bonds of $1,000 each by United States Commissioner Walker pending a hearing on April 23.

Kramer, who denied knowledge of the liquor, said he had lost his fortune in other restaurant investments.

SENATE PASSES
COMPANION ACTS
TO INCOME TAXLaw Is Called "Another
Nail in G. O. P. Coffin."

Springfield, Ill., April 14.—[Special.]

—The Lantz state income tax bill was assailed as "another nail in the coffin" for the Republicans today by Senator Victor P. Michel [Rep., Peoria], the only down-state senator who voted with sixteen Cook county members against the bill yesterday when it passed the senate with thirty affirmative votes, all down-staters.

The companion bill to the main measure, changing present laws so that the income tax shall be substituted for general property taxes, for state purposes, were passed today.

"Another nail is being hammered into the Republican coffin," said Senator Michel, who led the fight in the senate for the state prohibition repeal. "The governor's veto of the repeal was a nail in the coffin. Income tax will prove another nail when once the small earners in the cities scattered all over the state realize what it means. It would shove a tax burden on persons of small earning power who now pay indirect taxes in rentals and in prices of life necessities."

"Crepe for the G. O. P."

"The undertakers seem to be busy here at Springfield. It seems the veto and the income tax are placing the Republican party in the hands of the mortician. Keep it up and they might as well hang crepe on the ticket next time and give it a bunch of lilies."

House members are looking for a light when the income tax gets to the lower chamber for action. Opponents are arguing that action has run in opposite directions on the repeal and the income tax bill. They set forth that the prohibition repeal was voted despite a 1 to 1 favorable vote in the November referendum, while the income tax bill went through the senate despite a state vote defeating a constitutional amendment embracing the subject.

Senator Simon E. Lantz [Rep., Springfield] today gave out an exposition of the income tax measure. The main bill (S. B. 138) imposes a tax upon the net income of all residents of Illinois. It also taxes the net income of nonresidents received from sources within the state. The bill does not apply to corporations or partnerships.

Business Expenses Exempt.

Provision is made that ordinary business expenses, including general taxes on property, may be deducted from gross income in computing the amount of net income. General property taxes paid by a taxpayer, however, are not to be deducted from income tax, as was provided in earlier measures. No personal or living expenses are deductible.

The tax rates on net income are:

Not exceeding $2,000—1 per cent.

Between $2,000 and $4,000—2 per cent.

Between $4,000 and $10,000—3 per cent.

Between $10,000 and $25,000—4 per cent.

Between $25,000 and $50,000—5 per cent.

Excess of $50,000—6 per cent.

Personal exemptions are allowed as follows: $1,000 for each single person; $2,000 for each married couple or head of a family; $500 for each child under 18 years or other dependent person.

Replaces Property Tax.

The income tax is to be used in place of the state tax on general property in normal times, but provision is made that if revenue from income tax in 1933 is not sufficient to meet the appropriations from the general revenue fund, then a tax may also be levied on property payable in 1933 to meet the difference.

The bill provides the first income tax shall be levied and collected in 1933 on the taxable income of 1932.

It is conservatively estimated, said Senator Lantz, "that the income tax bill will produce at least $20,000,000 in any year, at least $40,000,000 in prosperous years, and possibly $50,000,000 in a highly prosperous year."

Senator Thomas Courtney, minority leader, declared the bill unloads the burden on groups less able to pay.

"The bill," he said, "provides for a new tax to be unloaded on poor people in Chicago and other cities, the renters and flat dwellers. It's the little fellow today who bears the great burden of taxation in an indirect way in rents and prices of things he buys. This simply gives him a heavier load."

Francis W. Upton, general superintendent of John Sexton & Co., wholesale grocers, a nephew of its founder, was sued for divorce in the Superior court yesterday by Mrs. Elizabeth Upton, 1534 Ardmore avenue. Mrs. Upton alleges cruelty, and asks an injunction to restrain her husband from entering her home or molesting her. The Uptons were married on March 21, 1922.

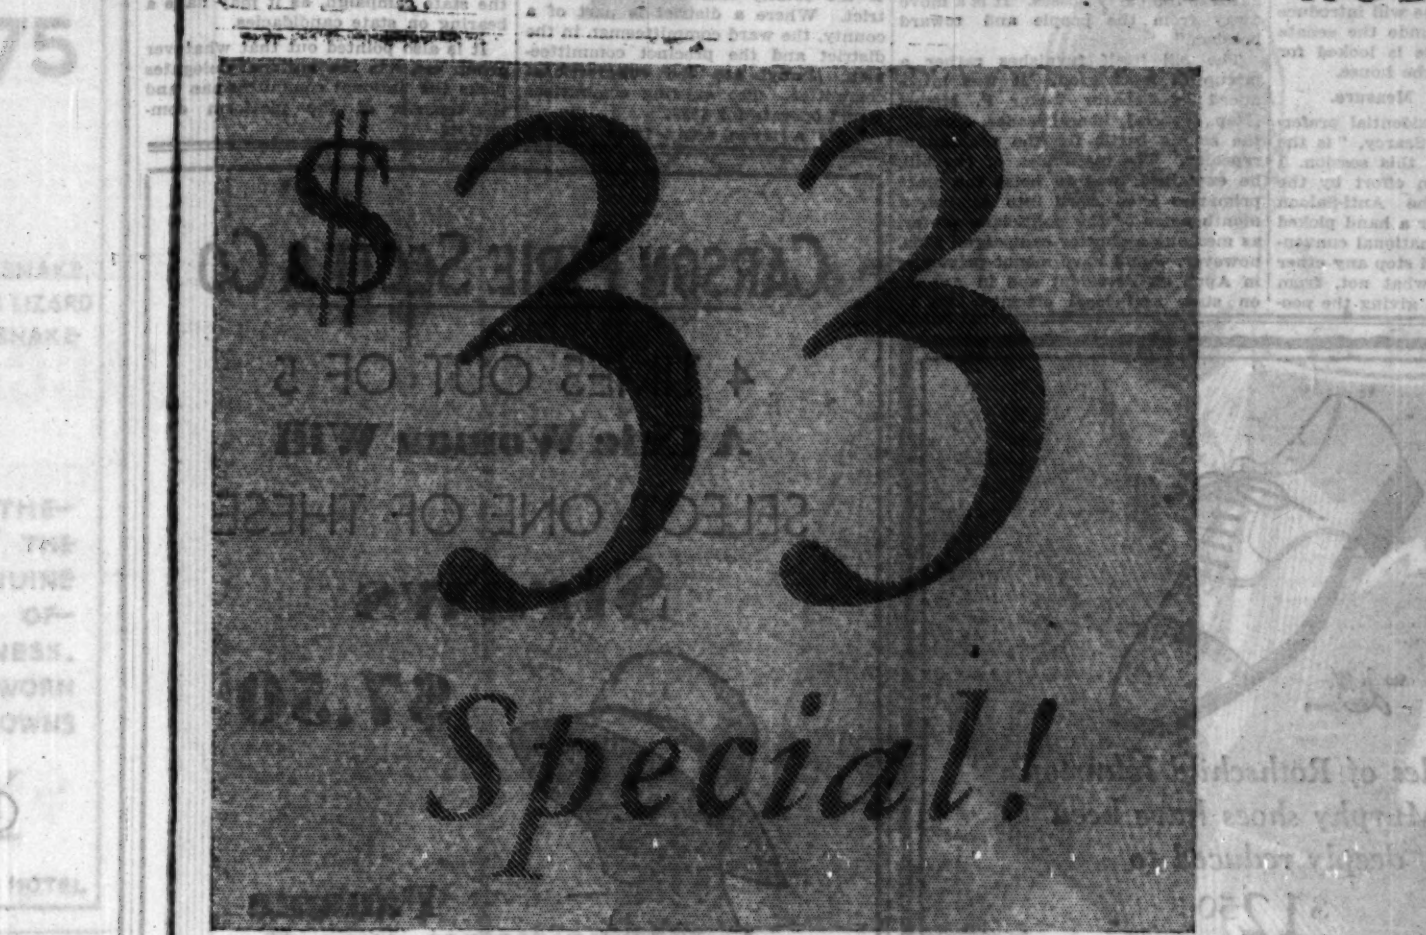

The Chicago Jewelers' association yesterday appointed a general committee to work with fair authorities in planning the participation of the jewelry industry in the exposition. The south park board yesterday advertised for bids for the construction of bulkheads for the extension of Northstar island, from 15th to 23rd street. This extension will add 137 acres to the island, now 70 acres in area, which forms part of the site for the World's Fair. Bids will be received April 29 and the work will be completed in five months. The extension will be used for agricultural, industrial, state and federal buildings, and other purposes.

John P. Isaacson, 75 years old, and his wife, Frederica, about the same age, were found dead last evening in their quarters in the rear of Isaacson's shoe store and repair shop at 3400 Broadway avenue. He had been a merchant there for twenty-nine years. Town Hall police broke into the place, after Mrs. Amanda Swanson, 2347 Osgood street, a friend of the couple, reported that the doors were closed all day. Both Isaacsons were in night clothes. Their bedroom adjoined a small workroom in the rear of the store, in which a gas jet was burning, and the police advanced a theory that the oxygen in the bedroom had been exhausted, asphyxiating the couple. Mrs. Swanson said that she had known Mrs. Isaacson for many years, but had never heard her first name. She added that they have no relatives in Chicago.

ASSAIL PRIMARY REPEAL AS MOVE TO HIT LIBERALS

Some G. O. P. Leaders
Fear Dry Delegates in '32

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Springfield, Ill., April 16.—[Special.]—Among bills introduced today in the senate were:

H. R. 511: Judiciary committee creates Illinois commission for the study of poverty and dependency in old age. Seven members appointed by governor. Appropriation of $25,000. To report to governor not later than February, 1932.

H. R. 520: House—Prohibits public utilities from retailing merchandise or chattels. Senate utilities.

H. R. 521: House—Removes requirement that subscription blanks and statements of class D securities carry words "These are speculative securities."

H. R. 522: House—Amends motor vehicle act to provide that driver of car convicted of violating may be deprived of right to operate car for three months.

Among bills introduced in the house were:

H. R. 524: Senate—To regulate firms dealing in disposal of dead animals.

H. R. 527: House—Requires publishing of rates of utility companies to be presented to legislature.

H. R. 528: House—Home rule for cities gives them the right to control utilities within their borders.

"This repeal of presidential preference primaries," said Searcy, "is the most vicious measure this session. I am convinced it is an effort by the drys, advised by the Anti-Saloon league, to hand Hoover a hand picked dry delegation in the national convention. The repeal would stop any other candidate, liberal or what not, from entering his name and giving the peoavoid a double set the bill repealed the presidential primaries.

Later, when it got going, leading Republicans declare the state administration cuddled up to it and gave it support. It also got help from some of the Chicago Republican politicians.

From the votes it got from Cook county Democrats, too, a question was raised today whether the Democratic organization is taking the same view as the administration.

Senator Michel, its author, said today his idea was to improve the election laws.

"I'm not for Hoover," he said. "I'm for a good, hard hitting liberal for the Republican nomination for President. If this impairs the battle to get the Republican party back in touch with the people, it, of course, ought to be refuted."

The preferential vote on President has been in vogue in Illinois since 1912 when it was passed under Gov. Denen and served to revive the Roosevelt movement which had suffered reverses in some northwest states. Political historians have regarded it as the real genesis of the Bull Moose party of 1912.

Let Emerson Pick Them?

In place of delegates to national conventions being picked by direct vote, the bill provides that the delegates at large shall be selected by the state committees and the district delegates by the congressional committees. As the Republican state committee is under Emerson control, opponents say the bill would let the governor pick the delegates at large. The congressional committees are composed of the county chairmen in each district. Where a district is part of a county, the ward committeemen in the district and the precinct committeemen, if any, are the congressional committee. The existing committee would operate for 1932.

"It's a move away from popular voice in government," said Senator James J. Barbour [Rep., Chicago]. "It would let a few ward committeemen pick district delegates to the national conventions. It's a move to make the party bosses more powerful. Direct primaries are not as bad as the old boss ridden conventions. Without a primary I'd never have been elected senator."

See Wet-Dry Issue in 1932.

Some of the liberals, who have professed to see the hand of the Hoover administration in the vote of the prohibition repealer, tonight conjectured the abolition of presidential primaries has a connection with the talk of Gov. Emerson as running mate for Hoover in 1932. Reports are widely circulated here that Vice President Curtis may not seek a second term, and that Illinois is regarded as a pivotal state.

Politicians here say the governor's veto makes the wet and dry issue clear cut for 1932 in the state elections, and that if Hoover is renominated as a dry candidate, the Washington administration leaders are regarding Emerson for vice president on the theory this would strengthen the ticket in Illinois.

At the recent John D. Rockefeller dinner here the governor extolled Hoover and his administration. One theory the liberals have been advancing is that the statehouse men have been boosting the bill to repeal the presidential primaries and place the state primaries in August instead of April, so that opportunity may be given to see what the national conventions do in June before shaping up the state campaign, as it may have a bearing on state candidacies.

It is also pointed out that whatever group controls the national delegates picks the national committeeman and the member of the platform committee.

WHEN SAN FRANCISCO BURNED

Stock Fire Insurance
Met Its Supreme Test

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO San Francisco was in flames. The fourth day of the fire revealed 28,188 ruined buildings, covering 520 city blocks.

Thousands were left homeless. Property destruction reached the enormous total of $350 million dollars.

This one fire swept away all underwriting profit earned by the Stock Fire Insurance companies since 1860 and 80 million dollars in addition.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

companies paid more than 200 million dollars into the stricken city, and San Francisco stands today as a magnificent example of the restorative power of sound insurance and the courage and resourcefulness of its citizens. Through succeeding years the Stock Fire Insurance companies comprising the National Board of Fire Underwriters have increased their efforts to make cities safer—protect life and property in all communities—reduce the possibility of San Francisco's experience being repeated anywhere.

SHIPS HIMSELF IN BOX ACROSS SEA TO GOTHAM

on Ellis Island.

New York, April 16.—[Special.]—A young Chinese, consigned to a fifth avenue department store, is passing the night on Ellis Island. He seems a nice young man and probably would be handy around the store, but he has no visa on his passport.

Mr. Chianese, 20, paid a carpenter to box him up and had himself shipped from Paris "collect." The box was marked "hats." It was five feet by three feet by two feet.

Chianese's first anxiety occurred on a railway station platform in Paris when the porters chanced to set him upside down. For three hours, by his reckoning, he remained thus, standing on his head inside the box, and darned uncomfortable, waiting to be put aboard the Lafayette of the French line.

Gets Tired of Box.

But he got on the ship right side up and clear of suspicion, for he himself, being an interior decorator, had studied the regulation lettering on the box and had posted the proper labels. All went well then for a couple of days, when Mr. Chianese grew tired of sitting in one position and eating only chocolate and biscuits. Finally he grew so tired of it that he took out his pistol, introduced blank cartridges and began firing. It was his original way of saying, "Lafayette, I am here."

An officer, passing through the hold, saw the youth was aforesaid, heard the firing, saw smoke coming from the packing box, opened it and was about to speak when Mr. Chianese anticipated his question:

"Who are you?" he asked.

"I'm the captain of arms," was the reply.

Recognizes Capture of Arms.

"O, yes, I recognize you," said Mr. Chianese. "When I was on the ship, being carried from the wharf, I peeped through my window and saw you standing on the deck."

Mr. Chianese did have such a little window in his box, the officer noticed, as the stowaway got up and stretched to his height of 5 feet 10 inches. He was wearing a gray suit, blue shirt, blue and brown tie, gray felt hat and glasses. He said that his father was an interior decorator and so was he and that he did so wish to come to America. He had tried it once before simply by walking over the gang-plank to the "De Grasse," but when asked for his ticket he had to say, "This simple Simon, 'Indeed, I have not any.' He then was put ashore."

3,000 MILES IN BUS

Amy Fitzgerald, 13 years old, who arrived in Chicago by bus from Oakland, Calif., on Wednesday night to find a barber shop at 1862 Milwaukee avenue, the address she had been given as that of her uncle and aunt, was safe yesterday with her relatives, Charles and Edith Fitzgerald, 1871 Milwaukee avenue.

Amy was taken to the juvenile home by Shakespeare avenue police when she could not find her relatives. The Fitzgeralds had gone to the bus terminal but had missed Amy. When they returned home and found the child was not there they appealed to the police. A telephone message sent by the police solved the puzzle.

GRAIN TRADER IS INDICTED AS POLICE SLAYER

The grand jury yesterday voted an indictment against Frederick Guy Sprague, 69 years old, head of the Grain Traders company, 39 West Adams street, charging him with the murder of Policeman Patrick J. Gallagher of the Town Hall station. He is to be held without bail pending trial.

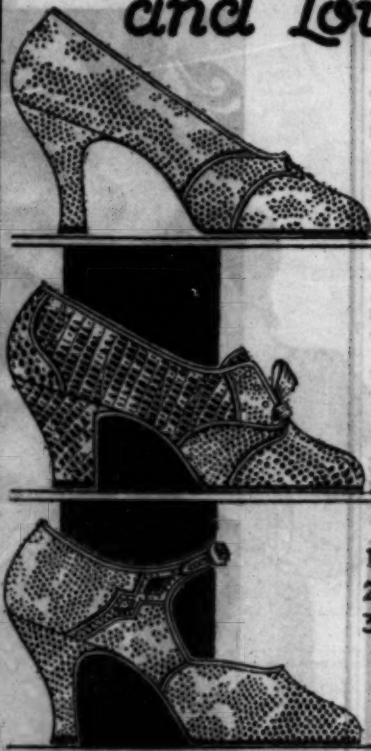

Policeman Gallagher was shot and fatally wounded Monday night when he went with Policeman Carl H. Johnson to quiet a noisy party in Sprague's rooms at the Windsor-Wilson hotel, 215 Wilson avenue. The party was in celebration of Sprague's birthday. Sprague greeted the policemen with a revolver. He has indicated he will plead that the shooting was an accident.

Smart men who know how (and where) are remembering this:

The price of every

$35

Read that headline again!
It says something that practically no other clothier in America can say.

And it talks common sense thrift more forcibly than all the exaggerated pricecomparison ballyhoo we're expected to believe, nowadays.

Of course, the extra trousers with every Bond suit aren't alone responsible for the thriving condition of our business.
We're quite sure that our London-designed fashions have much to do with our success. And we know that lots of men easily recognize our thoroughbred fabrics as being identical with the ones they've seen in much more expensive clothes.

But why get only a half-measure of satisfaction from these most desirable features? Double service — with two trousers — costs no more at Bond's.
There isn't another clothier in America who can say that!

If you should wonder how we can do what nobody else has done, let us remind you that we make the clothes we sell — a mighty thrifty way of doing business for us, and for our customers.

BLOCK FIST FIGHT AS LIBERALS FIRE ON EMMERSON

False! Shouts One House
G. O. P. at Another.

[Rep. Mount Vernon], the governor's fellow townsman, next took the floor. "Every day before we get through our work we have to listen to some sort of censure of the Republican party," said Thompson wearily, directing his remark at Mr. Green.

Green jumped to his feet. "I have never censured the Republican party," he cried. "That's false, and you know it."

Thompson started for him. "Say that outside," he snapped. "I'll say it outside," Green retorted and went around the corner of his desk as though to meet the downstairs.

"I'm not so sure I'll let you say it inside," said Thompson, but friends of both took them by the shoulders and pulled them back. Speaker Shanahan's gavel struck a resounding crescendo, drawing the rest of the bitter colloquy. When order was restored, Thompson turned his attention to the minority leader.

Thompson smiles at Igoo. "I am surprised, Mr. Igoo," he said, smiling, "surely you know that current ballad 'Ninety-nine Out of a Hundred Want to Be Loved, Why Don't You?' I think you made a slip when you said the governor was acting criminally."

"No, no slip at all," returned Igoo shortly. "But with respect he is entitled to?" "He is entitled to as much respect as he gave us," said Igoo.

Thompson called attention to the fact that the governor has a fund which could be used to mail the platform and the message.

Questions, Governor's Act. "Do you think it proper for him to be disseminating copies of the Republican platform?" asked Representative Burns (Dem., Kankakee).

"For this purpose," Thompson maintained. "What a tempest over some postage stamps," remarked Mr. Schnackenberg.

O'Grady took the floor near the end of the session and charged that the governor had attempted to influence two senators—Earl B. Searcy (Rep., Springfield) and Ray Paddock (Rep., Wauconda)—to vote against the liberal bill. Both are liberals and voted for the bill.

At the close of the debate there was no indication that the liberals had gotten all their arguments out of their systems and the fight probably will be resumed next week.

TEN HOME RULE BILLS ARE INTRODUCED IN ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE

Springfield, Ill., April 16.—[Special.]—Ten bills for home rule for the cities of the Illinois Municipal League on home rule for cities, were introduced in the legislature today by Representative Raymond O'Keefe, (Dem., Chicago), in the house and Senator Thomas P. Cavanaugh, (Rep., Princeton) in the senate.

Of principal interest to Chicago was the bill to force all public utility companies to secure a permit or franchise from the city before they could operate in the streets with public carriers, or, in the instance of telephone companies, use city mains for conduits and cables. There is controversy now over whether a permit from the Illinois commerce commission is sufficient grant.

One of the bills would permit downstate cities to raise their limitation of indebtedness from 2½ to 4 percent of their assessed valuation, the latter being the Chicago limit. This, it is claimed, would give urban municipalities the opportunity to run utility projects in competition with private companies.

Ann Christy Loses Her $100,000 Nose Lawsuit

Los Angeles, Cal., April 16.—[Special.]—Ann Christy, motion picture actress, failed today in an effort to collect $100,000 damages from the Herbert M. Searcy corporation for a broken nose. A Superior court jury decided against her. The actress complained her nose was broken when her automobile ran into one of the company's ditching machines, parked and improperly lighted at the roadside.

ARNOLD BENNETT LEAVES $500,000 IN 100 WORD WILL [Chicago Tribune Press Service.] LONDON, April 16.—One of the largest literary fortunes, it is understood, has been left by the late Arnold Bennett. The novelist's estate is expected to exceed $500,000. Mr. Bennett's will was written on a small sheet of note paper in a little over 100 words. No British author so far has left more than $500,000. The nearest was Stanley Weyman, who left $497,000. The next highest was Charles Dickens, with $480,000. Charles Garvice left $355,000, and Anthony Trollope, $300,000.

Since the war, however, the earnings of novelists and authors have increased considerably.

LIBERALS HELP BRITISH PREMIER TURN BACK FOES

Commons Beats Censure
Motion by 54 Votes.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
LONDON, April 16.—The massed artillery of the Conservative opposition

RAMSAY MACDONALD.

signally failed to dislodge Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government on a motion to censure in the house of commons tonight when the Liberals rallied to the government's support. The government secured a substantial majority of 54 votes to turn down the no confidence motion to the effect that the government had not lived up to its campaign pledges of relief for hundreds of thousands of unemployed.

The actual voting was 305 to 251. The majority was even greater than the most confident Laborites had anticipated.

Lloyd George to Rescue.

The Liberals again came to Mr. MacDonald's rescue after David Lloyd George, Liberal chieftain, had heard the government's defense as outlined by Tom Johnston, the new Lord Privy Seal.

Johnston, appointed to the cabinet less than two months ago, in 41 years old and a strapping figure in the ranks of the elderly members of the cabinet. He answered the attack of the Conservative leader, Stanley Baldwin, with a dignified and careful analysis.

"This country," he said, "is one industrial land in the world where distress was met without resorting to bread lines and soup kitchens."

He related the government's schemes for employment on roads, drainage, and colonial developments, which, he said, had provided work for nearly 27,000 persons.

Debate Lasts 7 1/2 Hours.

Prime Minister MacDonald also took part in the debate, which lasted seven and a half hours, describing the Tory censure motion as "humbug."

Thereupon Lloyd George announced his party would support the government, describing the Conservative motion as "unfair." Thirty-five Liberals voted with the Laborites, with ten Liberals, headed by Sir John Simon, voting against the government. Members of the Mosley's "insurgents" abstained.

45 Members of Frat at N. U. Quarantined

Forty-five members of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity at Northwestern university were quarantined in the fraternity house yesterday after it was found that Alfred Bennett of Nebraska City, Neb., president of the freshman class, had scarlet fever. Bennett was taken to the Evanston hospital. Dr. Samuel J. Lang, university physician, ordered the other members to remain in the house until Saturday.

Harriman, N. Y. Banker, Bride Sail for Trinidad

New York, April 16.—(AP)—Oliver Carter Harriman, a New York banker, and Mrs. Mathilda Susanna Conroy of New York sailed today for Trinidad after their marriage at Stamford, Conn. Mr. Harriman is the grandson of the late Oliver Harriman and the late Francis Carter. He previously had been married twice. This is the second marriage for his bride, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Kelley of London and New York.

Lawyer Accused by His Clients Wins Court Delay

Attorney Harold W. Jirka was granted a continuance until April 22 when he was arraigned yesterday before Judge Frank M. Padden in the felony court on five charges of operating a confidence game. Clients of the attorney charge that he obtained money from them for legal actions which he failed to perform.

OPEN EVENINGS

Farmers Are Optimistic as They Plant 1931 Crops

BY PAUL POTTER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Urbana, Ill., April 16.—[Special].—That indomitable optimism that the countryside feels at seed time, in good years or those not so good, is to be found up and down the rural roads of Illinois these days. And although they realize that politicians and radical farm leaders may still be able to find an occasional sour note in the song of the 1931 farmer, many thousands of capable, substantial farm operators of the state have buckled down to work their way to better times in a spirit that is much more in evidence on farms than elsewhere these days.

No other conclusion could be reached by one who swings out through the fertile farms of the state, and engages this better type of farmer, of whom there are thousands, in a feed lot or gang plow conversation. Those who have shirked, or become involved in land speculations, or have made profits in years when good judgment and energetic farming were not at a premium, are slowly but surely losing their grip.

Some Making Profits.
Many such were found this week, perhaps within gunshot of a neighbor whose confidence in farming was unshaken, and who might even point to profits made in the last two years. The contrast is convincing to all but the men involved, and who must eventually lose to an able competitor. You can find many men fixed as is Fred Durst, Will county farmer, whose fat cattle are always looked for by the packer business in Chicago's stockyards. He reads his local and metropolitan papers, his farm and market papers, and finds the radio a business asset. He maintains a modern home and his barn, granary, fences and fields tell plainly as any busy factory that successful management has the reins. He can afford to buy a new car, improve his buildings, and to rent more land this year, when the advantages of material and labor costs mock the man less capable.

Two score others like him were visited in 10 counties. Local bankers have no trouble in pointing them out to you. In many cases, one is preceded or followed, like a salesman in a busy office, by representatives of equipment dealers, by commission men, and others who will tell you that the farmer has money for the things he needs, and is buying them. Seven new farm homes in course of construction were seen in one forenoon jaunt.

Farmers Not All Gloomy.

And there are those who will point out for you many concrete reasons why all is not gloom, and on the contrary that farm relief is idle man's talk these days. These are some that were brought out by farmers themselves during the chats:

1. Last year's shortest corn crop

2. Canada Air Mail Routes Canceled by Government

PUBLIC BLAMED FOR CRIME WAVE BY WICKERSHAM

Says Indifference Slows Enforcement.

Cincinnati, O., April 16.—(AP)—Administration of criminal justice in the United States was criticized tonight by Chairman Wickersham of the law enforcement commission, who blamed particularly "a public attitude toward law that encourages law breaking."

In his second public statement since the commission completed its prohibition report before the Cincinnati regional crime committee, Wickersham did not mention prohibition except indirectly.

"Where a tolerance of lawless conduct is developed among educated and prominent people," he said, "the axe has been laid at the root of the tree of social security."

Wickersham criticized law enforcement officers who he said stoop "to attain their ends by means as illegal as the acts they seek to punish or suppress."

Criticizes Enforcement Lawlessness.
He said a study of lawlessness among officials being made by the commission probably would show for the first time "this ugly side of our officialdom."

Wickersham said there had been also a harmful retrogression in the activities and positions of judges and prosecutors, a failure to reform methods of prison treatment, a lack of adequate probation and parole supervision, a failure to provide federal juvenile courts, and most of all a lack of criminal statistics necessary to institute the proper reforms in this system.

Will Report to Hoover Soon.
A report by the commission, soon to be submitted to President Hoover, he said, will recommend a statistics division in the justice department, with the task later expanded under the census bureau.

"Abundant evidence has been spread before the American people for years past," Wickersham continued, "of the need of a thorough overhauling of our whole system of criminal justice. Every day furnishes examples of the absence of that wholesome respect for law which ought to be characteristic of a self-governing people."

Wickersham said commission studies revealed that "unemployment ranks high among the factors" which influence crime and that a dollar wisely invested in child care may result in greater profit than $1,000 "spent on the machinery of criminal justice."

"The federal judicial system has no juvenile courts," he said, "nor any other modern human method of dealing with the increasing number of juvenile offenders against modern federal legislation."

For Check on Prosecutors.
Wickersham said investigations had suggested "the need of a better check upon the prosecutor than is customarily applied." He added too great a latitude was allowed judges in sentencing criminals.

"Obviously," he said, "a system which leaves the consequences of conviction of crime so largely to uncontrolled judicial discretion is entirely unscientific, and there is abundant evidence that much injustice results from it."

Wickersham also criticized parole methods, applied in many instances at the earliest moment permissible by the statutes in order to cut down the growth of prison populations.

"From this practice," he said, "has grown up a conviction among prisoners that they are entitled to discharge as soon as the period of imprisonment has expired, at which the parole board has power to release them. If a prisoner is confined beyond this time he considers himself aggrieved."

The recent riots at Joliet prison in Illinois, he said, had just such an origin. The purpose of parole, he added, is emphatically not "an automatic full delivery."

FORMER CONVICT SLAIN AS POLICE FIGHT SUSPECTS

One of Two Girls in Gang and Officer Shot.

Bowling Green, O., April 16.—(AP)—Willis Miller, 25, known as a shop-lifter, who has been slipping over penitentiary walls and out of handcuffs since he killed his brother in Pennsylvania six years ago, stepped into a gun battle here today and made good his boast that he couldn't be captured alive.

He fell after firing one shot from a .45 caliber revolver at two policemen who attempted to arrest him and three companions, two of whom were girls, as bank robber suspects, and died with a bullet in his abdomen while a battle raged about him.

One Gunman Escapes.
Another gunman, said by police to be Clarence Saunders of Kansas City, Mo., emptied his gun at the policemen, critically wounding one of them, and escaped in an automobile.

The two girls were captured. One of them was picked up near the dead man. A stray shot punctured her skull, but physicians said she may recover. Her identity was uncertain. Although she gave her name as Beulah Baird, 26, divorced wife of Walter Ash, Kansas City, who was slain a month ago.

The other girl was said to be Ruth Saunders, 23, wife of the escaped bandit.

Miller was shot down by Police Chief Carl Gallier, 36, and Patrolman Ralph Castner, 28. He was identified through finger prints.

Castner, brought down by bullets in his abdomen and his right thigh, was reported in critical condition and is not expected to recover.

The 25 year old girl, who was captured by the police chief after a short chase, a few minutes later attempted to flee, although handcuffed, police reported.

Nearly $300 in cash and two pistols were found on the person of the slain man. His companion, who escaped, also flashed two pistols in the battle, police said.

WOMAN HELD ON BEER CHARGE.

Mrs. Mary Barber, alleged operator of a beer flat at 5255 Blackstone avenue, was held to the federal grand jury in bond of $1,000 by United States Commissioner Walker yesterday.

dit. She is believed to be a sister of the Baird girl.

Since he killed his brother, Joseph Miller, in Beaver county, Pa., on Sept. 18, 1925, Miller had been sought throughout the middle west as a murderer, escaped convict, bank bandit, holdup artist, and "all around" bad man. He was acquitted of his brother's murder on a claim of self-defense.

Identified by Finger Prints.
Miller was shot down by Police Chief Carl Gallier, 36, and Patrolman Ralph Castner, 28. He was identified through finger prints.

Castner, brought down by bullets in his abdomen and his right thigh, was reported in critical condition and is not expected to recover.

The 25 year old girl, who was captured by the police chief after a short chase, a few minutes later attempted to flee, although handcuffed, police reported.

NEW CITY COUNCIL TO TACKLE WARD REMAPPING JOB

Experts' Plans to Be Put Before Committee Soon.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

Miami, Fla., April 16.—[Special.]—Remapping of Chicago's fifty wards to equalize voting strength and population will be one of the first problems tackled by the new city council following its reorganization, which is now in progress here under the direction of aldermanic leaders. This was announced today by Ald. James B. Bowler (15th), who is chairman of a judiciary subcommittee appointed to draft a redistricting plan.

"With a new mayor in office and a new census just completed, it is the logical time to accomplish the job," said Ald. Bowler. "I believe the people and the aldermen are in the mood for it, and it ought to go forward at once."

Ald. Bowler revealed that for several weeks experts in the Chicago map department have been working on a tentative new ward lineup which he expects to submit soon to the subcommittee as a basis for discussions. The subcommittee will report to the full judiciary committee, which, in turn, will make its recommendation to the council. Adoption of a redistricting ordinance by the council would make the plan effective.

Aims of Redistricting.

The two major objectives of the remapping, according to Ald. Bowler, should be, first, to equalize voting populations as nearly as possible, and second, to consolidate racial and nationalistic groups within natural boundaries.

Ald. Bowler's tentative plan will provide for 50 wards, the same number as at present. The first ward will be extended south and the largest part of the colored district will be placed in one ward. A new ward will be created on the near southwest side by unification of the present 15th and 11th wards. Four new wards will be created and four eliminated on the west and northwest sides, the inner circle being expanded and the outer circle contracted. The same number of wards will remain on the north side, although with different boundaries.

Putting such a plan into effect would not affect the two year terms of the present members of the council, Ald. Bowler explained. Although their homes might be located in wards other than those they represent, he said, they could continue to serve about the same territories until 1933, meanwhile adjusting themselves to the new boundaries.

Cites Inequalities in Votes.

The inequalities in the votes cast for mayor in the election were cited by Ald. Bowler as the best evidence why redistricting is needed. The smallest vote was cast in the 13th ward, a total of only 1,550, as compared to 47,435 in the 35th ward. A comparison of these figures shows that the voting strength in the 13th ward is less than one-fourth that in the 35th.

Three wards, the 12th, 20th, and 31st, combined, cast only 31,913 votes for mayor, or less than the number cast in each of four or five of the outlying wards in the northwest and southwest portions of the city.

Arrests Bring Rush for City Vehicle Tax Tags

Scene at the city collector's office yesterday when hundreds of persons made belated payments of tax and got their tags in order to prevent arrests and fines.

CERMAK ORDERS ARREST OF CITY CAR TAX EVADERS

Faking by Autoists Is Revealed.

BY HAL FOUST.

Mayor Cermak, on vacation in Florida, telephoned to the city hall yesterday directing the police arrest Chicago automobile owners who have not paid their 1931 city wheel tax. The tax was due three and a half months ago, but a survey, the results of which were published in yesterday's Tribune, indicated there are approximately 100,000 motor cars in Chicago without either state or city 1931 licenses.

Meanwhile, the city and state were investigating Chicago motorists who have registered their cars with fictitious addresses in other states or other municipalities.

Assistant City Prosecutor Wetzel, who has been working with Assistant State's Attorney Samuels and Deputy License Inspector Klug, announced that approximately 700 Chicago owned automobiles bearing Indiana license plates were under scrutiny. "Prosecutor Wetzel said the first of these cases would be called today before Municipal Judge Fetzner in the South Chicago court."

"By having an Indiana license, which averages about $4 cheaper than the Illinois plates," said Wetzel, "some Chicago automobile owners have been evading the city wheel tax by giving fake addresses and getting village tags in suburbs where the municipal tax is low."

The maximum fine for carrying an improper city license tag or failing to obtain a 1931 tag is $25. The maximum fine for operating a car without a legal state license is $100.

"We've been investigating quietly for more than a month," said Secretary of State Stratton yesterday, "and have collected many thousands of dollars that formerly escaped state treasury. We've given special attention to trucks and buses."

"The applications for licenses bulged our mail from Chicago today. We have been handicapped by a very small staff in getting these 1931 registration fees. I want to thank the Tribune for the help in its news columns this morning."

George Lohman, acting city collector, likewise reported a spurt of business yesterday.

A humorous touch was added to the fraud investigation by Henry P. Feltes, proprietor of a paint store at 7055 North Clark street, who said that a customer had bought some green lacquer, remarking that he wanted the paint to make 1931 license plates out of his 1930 plates.

FIVE ALDERMEN DEADLOCK OVER CHAIRMANSHIPS

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

Miami Beach, Fla., April 16.—[Special.]—An hour's session today of the five members of the Chicago city council committee on committees ended in discord.

Although angry voices were heard in the corridors, Ald. James B. Bowler (15th) announced the breakup as only a deadlock that may be easily solved.

The meeting was a showdown, according to reports, in that each member of the committee which is making up a slate of working committees announced what he wants in committee chairmanships and membership for the ten wards each represents. Each argued strenuously for his own particular program.

"It is true we are in a deadlock," said Ald. Bowler, "but it is not political or factional. It was caused by each member—and that may include myself—asking for too much for the section of the city each represents. I think that we can get together."

But a statement that the vote on one proposition was three to two was seen as an indication that a Democrat had aligned himself, for one vote at least, with Ald. John A. Masson (8th), the lone Republican on the committee. It was noted that Thomas A. Doyle (13th) left the meeting with Masson, with four chairmanships, was asking for more, and Doyle with only two chairmanships was making demands that he insisted be met.

Mayor Cermak entertained at lunch the politicians and public officials who brought their wives with them. Among the newcomers to the resort are Bailiff, Horan, Edward J. Kaindl, defeated candidate for city treasurer, and Judge John H. Lyle. No one, however, was able to talk patronage with Mayor Cermak.

Loose DANDRUFF offends

How to get rid of it

LISTERINE, NOTED ANTISEPTIC, FOUND HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

If your scalp itches or burns, if your hair is thinning or you are troubled with loose dandruff, begin using full strength Listerine, systematically, as an antiseptic shampoo. Simply douse it on and massage the scalp as vigorously as you can.

Literally tens of thousands have rid themselves of a dandruff condition with Listerine. They are simply amazed by the speed with which it gets results—often in cases where other, more complicated treatments had failed. One or two applications are frequently found sufficient.

What loose dandruff is Loose dandruff is the visual evidence of a diseased or infectious condition of the scalp. It is most likely to manifest itself when the seasons change.

Evidence seems to point that the condition is of germ origin. At any rate, the fat glands about the hair become over-active, throwing off a disgusting, greasy, whitish substance known as sebum. This forms in crusts and scales that betray you as a careless and unhealthy person.

Neglect is dangerous

The hair, meanwhile, seems literally to be stifled. It grows lustreless, lifeless, falls out. The scalp feels hot and itchy. If the condition is not treated promptly, eczema and baldness may follow, and usually do.

At the first symptom of trouble, the fight against loose dandruff should begin. Consider Listerine's effectiveness against this condition.

Why Listerine succeeds

If infection is present on the surface of the skin, Listerine attacks it. A powerful germicide, it kills bacteria in 15 seconds. The fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Listerine helps to dissolve oily crusts and quickly removes them, as well as horny scales. And Listerine quickly relieves that burning, itching sensation. It soothes inflamed or irritated areas of the scalp.

If scalp is dry

If scalp is excessively dry, a little olive oil may be used in connection with the Listerine shampoo, or independent of it. The oil

The new naval relief hurried to the town yesterday by order of Stimson. The order for the Memphis came a day after the administration had planned to operate Nicaraguan policy while use of force in the property than had been during the Coolidge administration.

More alarming reports that the menace to American property was spread by the Nicaraguan forces to Bluefields, a new pressure from the east, was responsible in the decision to make show of force in the band.

The gunboat Sacramento, service squadron, was directed to put in at Bluefields tomorrow. It is due tomorrow. Rochester, flagship of the ice squadron, has left Coahuila, where it will await the arrival of the Puerto Cabezas. The Ash at once to Cape Gracias order of Secretary Stimson.

RUSH WARSHIPS TO NICARAGUA TO GUARD AMERICANS

Bandits Shift Operations to Bluefields Area.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., April 16.—Two new American naval vessels, the light cruiser Memphis and the gunboat Sacramento, were speeding late today for the trouble zones on the Nicaraguan coast, where eight Americans have been killed by bandits led by Gen. Sandino's followers. By late tonight or tomorrow three armed vessels will be patrolling the area around Bluefields and Puerto Cabezas, reported to land marines or bluejackets for the protection of American lives and property. The warships were ordered to Nicaragua following reports that bandits had attacked the town of Rama, 65 miles northwest of Bluefields.

Simultaneously, it was announced by the state department that the withdrawal of marines from the west coast of Nicaragua will proceed in accordance with the decision announced in February, under which all American forces will be withdrawn by June 1, 1932. About 1,000 marines, 254 of which have already departed, will have left Nicaragua by June 1, it was stated. This will leave 500 marines to be evacuated later.

Stimson and Hoover Confer.
The announcement that more naval forces would be sent to the east coast and that the departure of marines from the west coast to this country would go ahead as scheduled, was made following a long conference between President Stimson and Secretary of State Stimson.

The new naval reinforcements were hurried to the coast late yesterday by order of Secretary Stimson. The order for the departure of the Memphis came a few hours after the administration had disclosed that it planned to operate under a new Nicaraguan policy which called for less use of force in the protection of property than had been customary during the Coolidge administration. More alarming reports, indicating that the menace to American lives and property was spreading from the Puerto Cabezas area to the neighborhood of Bluefields, coupled with renewed pressure from business interests, was responsible in part, at least, for the decision to make a greater show of force in the bandit area.

The gunboat Sacramento of the special service squadron, which left Baltimore yesterday for Puerto Cabezas, was delayed to put in at Bluefields, where it is due tomorrow. The cruiser Rochester, flagship of the special service squadron, left Norfolk today for Puerto Cabezas. The Asheville will go to Cape Gracias a Dios by order of Secretary Stimson.

Call Out Civil Officers.
BLUEFIELD, Nicaragua, April 16.—The situation was fairly calm today, with the Nicaraguan guard posted on the line to make contact with a band of about sixty bandits.

WED AGAIN

HELEN TWELVREES.
(Mrs. F. J. Woody.)

Hollywood, Cal., April 16.—[Special.]—Helen Twelvrees, young film star, sprang a surprise on her friends here when she returned from an out of town trip and introduced herself as Mrs. Frank Jack Woody, bride of a Hollywood real estate agent. Miss Twelvrees said the marriage took place in Reno, Nev., recently. The actress' final decree of divorce from Clark Twelvrees, a New Yorker, was entered in the Los Angeles county courts on April 1.

Bluefield has called its civil officers into service and one of the guard are being replaced by civilians to permit complete withdrawal of guard troops for field service. This town was restless today due to rumors of the approach of a new bandit column.

Fears Family of 13 Slain.
New Orleans, La., April 16.—[Special.]—Fred C. Fagot, former Nicaraguan merchant, today said he feared his father and mother and ten other relatives had been slain by bandits in the raid Wednesday on Cape Gracias a Dios. He has been advised by Secretary of State Stimson and Assistant Secretary of the Navy, J. M. Clegg, that the state department and the navy department were striving to learn the fate of his relatives.

Fagot said he had been driven out of Nicaragua by Sandino, who had threatened to wipe out Americans in the settlement as reprisals for his brothers, Fred and Hugh, acting as guides for the United States marines.

Mabel Boll, Former Friend of Levine, Weds a Count

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
PARIS, April 16.—Mabel Boll, the "queen of diamonds," settled all doubt about her reported romance with Charles Levine, the trans-Atlantic flying jockey and former boy friend, Tuesday by marrying Count Henri de Percer, a handsome but bald Polish nobleman in his early thirties.

EXHIBIT MODEL OF PACHYDERMS' HOME IN NEW ZOO

A model of the enclosure in which elephants and other pachyderms will be lodged at the new zoological gardens at Brookfield was on exhibit yesterday at a meeting of the Chicago Zoological society at the Palmer house. Edwin Clark, architect of the park and construction of the model, explained the plan, which will, as near as is architecturally possible on a $300,000 appropriation, reconstruct the native environment of the African east Indian animals.

The entire building—240 by 120 feet—will be covered with artificial stone. It was explained, giving the appearance of native rock. This will house not only elephants but tigers, hippopotami, and rhinoceroses. There will be no bars or cages. The animals will be separated by moats.

Will Copy Native Haunts.

The entrance of the rock enclosure will be constructed directly and upon the surface will be carved the figures of prehistoric animals. The paddocks will be made to represent, as nearly as is possible in this climate, the native lairs of the animals. There will be lakes for swimming, with sandy beaches, shrubbery surrounded by moats, and outcroppings of rock.

Not very many people have an opportunity to see elephants running, the architect explained. "Nor do many people know that elephants like to climb over rocks and ledges, or that they can run faster than horses. Here they will look over the low stone wall of the moat enclosing the animal and see them as they behave naturally."

The society has already received the promise of a gift of a pair of Indian elephants from the maharajah of Patiala in India, who has visited Chicago. This is what is known as a high caste elephant, or the Kommeriah. The only ones known to have been exported from India were sent to England by the maharajah as a gift to King George. Other kinds of elephants we expect to get are the Indian, the African, and the West African pygmy elephant.

River Setting Planned.
The hippos, rhinos and tigers, it is planned, will appear in a river setting. There will be a large lagoon in which will be water fowl such as the ibis. The society expects to obtain a pair each of pygmy or ordinary hippopotami, black rhinoceroses, and Indian rhinoceroses.

Construction of the new unit will start, it was said, as soon as the money is available from the 1928 taxes. Because of the tax delay, it was explained, it is not probable that the zoo will be ready for the World's Fair of 1933.

John P. McCutcheon, president of the Zoological society, presided at the meeting.

YOUTHS ACCUSED OF THEFT.
Three youths, charged with stealing copper wire from a quarry, were held in the grand jury yesterday by Magistrate Fred J. Connelley. They are Max Baum, 3417 37th place; John Green, 3233 South 17th street; and Vincent J. Smith, 3213 South Pauline street.

TRADES DECORATING SERVICES

FOR SUIT OF CLOTHES!

Mr. T. O. C. placed a want ad in the Barter & Exchange column of the Tribune, offering to trade his services as painter and decorator for an auto or "anything of value."

He received 30 replies. Among them were offers of diamonds, an equity in a new car, fur coats, several makes of used cars, a farm in Michigan, free use of an apartment, vacant lots, houses, and tailoring.

He accepted the offer for tailoring, while two of his friends, also painters and decorators, made deals from other offers, one for a diamond and the other for an equity in an automobile!

Opportunities for profitable exchanges are numerous. Make a list of things in your own home that have exchange value, clothing, furniture, books and other articles that can be exchanged for things more useful to you. Then call Superior 0100, ask for an Adtaker. She can tell you how to word your want ad to attract many offers!

BED SHEETS, IT APPEARS, MEAN NOTHING IN RUSSIA

Mr. Wales Has a Little Trouble Getting Some.

BY HENRY WALES.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
MOSCOW, March 29.—[By Mail.]—I went into the state cooperative shop in the Petrovka (that's a street), to which I am accredited as a foreign newspaper correspondent, to buy some sheets and pillow cases and towels. In Russia you must have everything of your own, but try to get it. I found that out. Being reasonably inclined to cleanliness, I figured two pairs of sheets, that's four, would be enough. I also figured on two pillow cases, because I had only one pillow, or rather had hopes of getting only one pillow, as I was told that pillows were extremely hard to find. Some big mutation and tallow man from Georgia (Caucasus, not Atlanta) had probably cornered the pillow market.

He's Only Allowed Two.
The young lady, comrade with red hair behind the counter, who spoke French, said, "Yes, we have sheets. How many do you want?" I told her four.

"You can only have two," she said, standing at me sharply.

I didn't figure I rated being scaled down to two sheets, especially after having taken a bath that very morning, so I told her I wanted four, two for this week and two for next week, when these were at the laundry.

"Come back next week for the other pair," she replied. "And another thing, the laundry will take more than a week to wash this pair."

"That being the case," I observed firmly, "I will require a third pair."

3,000 CANADIANS IN U. S. WITHOUT PERMIT WILL BE DEPORTED

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
MONTREAL, Que., April 18.—Confirmation of the report that deportation proceedings will be taken against some 3,000 Canadians now living in the New England states, who entered the United States illegally, was given here today by H. R. Landis, United States commissioner of immigration here. Since the beginning of the year, an organized drive against aliens who entered illegally has been going on in many parts of the United States, he said. Deportations from the area around New York City alone have averaged 250 a week.

The law under which action is to be taken, passed in March, 1923, provides a penalty of $1,000 or one year's imprisonment for entering the United States without passing the examination and inspection by immigration inspectors.

Thousands of French Canadians left their own province of Quebec for New England during the bull move a few years ago, when wages were high and work plentiful.

"That intrigued her and she thought it over a minute.

"I tell you what you could do," she said, leaning one elbow on the counter and accepting a foreign cigarette which I thought it prudent to produce at that moment, "you can change only one sheet, the underneath one at the end of the week, and then take the top sheet and put that on the bottom."

"What, and sleep with one sheet and get itched all night by the blankets?" I objected.

"No," she explained, "then take a clean sheet and put that on top."

So she wrote down in my book "two sheets," or something like that meaning just sheets.

Then I attacked on the pillow case front.

"I suggest you a couple of little bags which, if they were loaded with pillows that size, would only give room for your ears."

"Bigger," I said. "Bigger ones"—in several languages.

"Oh," she said, "you mean for cushions," and hauled out some larger ones, with buttons on, to keep the active, healthy young pillows inside through the long, cold nights.

"And two pillows," I added firmly, hoping against hope that that cushion magnet had not cornered all the stock here. But he had.

"If you go down two streets, and over two streets, and up two streets"—began the titian haired young lady. "Yeah, I know that story, too," I interrupted. "I'll find a drug store and they have a directory and I can look up cushions."

Sends Him to Koshers Store.
"No," she said severely. "I'm not paid to stand here and tell funny stories; in fact, I'm not really paid for doing whatever this job is. I could make much more in the cinema. But what I started to tell you before you got so fresh is that if you follow my story on that corner."

"Whadda I want with a kosher store; must it be that I sleep on the Fiddish butcher's whiskers?" I inquired.

"Not at all," she said, "but if you locate this kosher store you will see they sell poultry, and you should figure yourself that, whatever they sell chickens and things, there must be a lot of feathers and where there are feathers, there must be pillows. You don't think they fill them with nuts and bolts, do you?"

The Lady Gets Angry.
"Well, how about the towels, madam?" I asked peevishly.

"We haven't any towels and don't call me 'madame,'" she replied with spirit. "I am Miss So and So, but just 'tovarish' to you, mister."

I saw I had made her sore and I figured I had better use diplomacy.

"Won't you please tell me where maybe I can get some towels?" I pleaded insinuatingly and offered another cigarette.

"You seem to have some pretty sporty gloves," she remarked, examining my fleece lined mitts lying on the counter. "If you wear them your hands won't get so dirty as all that."

Not Even for Shaving.
"How about when I shave for something to wipe my razor on?" I inquired triumphantly at that happy thought. But it bounced back like a rubber check.

"You shouldn't use a towel to wipe your razor blade, it cuts it, and on account of the five year plan we can't afford to be slicing up towels just so smart guys can shave," she answered tartly.

We were rapidly getting nowhere at all, and, as by this time a big crowd like you see at the world's series had gathered around and behind and on me waiting to be waited on, I figured I had better drop the whole thing.

So she made out the bill, after talking the number of my book, and made me sign my name.

And What a Bill.
"What is this for two weeks, little narrow ones for tubercular guys at that?" I barked. "Why, that's 72 bucks."

"I don't know anything about your bucks or what have you," she replied, "but I guess you capitalistic boys from capitalist countries can afford to pay as much as the poor downtrodden moujik, as you call him in your capitalist press, pays."

So I came home and borrowed a pillow and towels from the representative of the Russian branch of the American chamber of commerce, who lives in this flat. That was simpler than trying to track them down in their hidden lair.

Make this 10 gallon TEST

Prove the new facts about gasoline for yourself

Perhaps you can have these lower driving costs, this far better car performance now open to millions

MOTORISTS everywhere are making this amazing test. It may bring you far more satisfactory driving, at lower car upkeep costs, than you have ever known. Here are the facts.

Shell has pioneered a revolutionary change in gasoline. It has perfected, as the chart at right will show, a new, remarkably high anti-knock fuel. The New Improved Shell 400!

In anti-knock value, the quality all cars now need, this gasoline is far above the ordinary type of motor fuel. Yet it is offered you at the same price as the ordinary kind.

New Improved Shell 400 is Shell's contribution to the cause of low cost motoring. Shell believes motorists are entitled to the real economy, the great improvement in car operation which this new high anti-knock fuel makes possible.

Notice on the chart how much of the ordinary gasoline is below the needs of the modern engine. This fuel was good enough for engines such as were built in the past—but not up to the needs of the motors of today!

Shell does not ask you to accept its claim of this high anti-knock value in the New Improved Shell 400. It does urge you to try for yourself this fuel developed by Shell research. Prove the facts, in your own car!

Put in 10 gallons of New Improved Shell 400. Drive in traffic, on hills, under heavy loads. Almost everyone who has made this test has found real economy, new and better engine operation, with this new fuel. Ask your Shell station man about the nationwide mileage test now under way. Enter your car in it, today.

Hundreds of gasolines, from many cities, were tested. This chart reveals the full results. See how most ordinary gasoline falls below the needs of many cars. See for yourself the false economy of cut price gasolines—inferior, if not actually dangerous to your motor. Notice that New Improved Shell 400 has the precious quality all cars need—high anti-knock value.

NEW IMPROVED SHELL 400

Definitely better than many premium priced fuels, yet sold at regular gasoline prices. High in the quality all cars need—anti-knock value

TRACK REMOVAL ISSUE WILL BE FIGHT TO FINISH

Surface Lines and Park Spurn Compromise.

The proposed compromise between the Lincoln park commissioners and the Chicago Surface Lines over removal of the street car tracks in Lake Shore drive to permit development of the new outer drive yesterday ended in failure. The Illinois commerce commission ordered a resumption in the hearing of evidence on the petition of the park board for an order to remove the tracks.

Attorney Harry P. Weber, representing the surface lines, declared he was not ready to proceed and was granted a continuance over the protests of the park commissioners. The hearing will be resumed on May 5.

Both Willing to Fight.

At the conclusion of the compromise meeting, calling for Charles H. Hadley of the commission, both litigants declared they were willing to fight the case to a finish, forecasting years of litigation in state and federal courts. The consensus allowed three to five years for the ultimate settlement of the controversy. Attorney Weber indicated an appeal to the state courts would be made over an adverse ruling by the commission. Inasmuch as the car company is in receipt of a federal ruling is likewise necessary.

At the opening of the meeting, Chairman Hadley said, "It's about time for both sides to get together as business men and work out a compromise. It should be easy to formulate a plan to protect the rights of everybody."

Attorneys for both sides hastily asserted they favored a compromise but at the conclusion of an hour's wrangling Commissioner P. W. Collins said: "They are willing to compromise if each side gets what it wants."

Park Refuses to Compromise.

"We will be satisfied with nothing less than the complete removal of the tracks from the drive," Sheldon Clark, vice president of the park board, said. "They were laid illegally and are a bar to further progress."

Attorney Weber's compromise plan consisted of proposal to have the tracks run down the center of the new drive by along one side. When this was rejected he said: "I see no reason to jam this through. We will fight clear through the courts."

Lord Willingdon, New India Viceroy, Arrives in Bombay

BOMBAY, April 17.—(Friday.)—Lord Willingdon, new viceroy of India, arrived here at 6 o'clock this morning.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BOMBAY, April 16.—All the lords, ladies, knights, dames, maharajahs, rajahs, nabobs, and other potentates and notables who were fat off this weird land of starving millions, gathered in Bombay to night to bid good-bye to the departing viceroy, Lord Irwin, and to welcome the new viceroy, Lord Willingdon.

Lord Irwin, looking tired and haggard after his hectic five years in office, arrived in a special train from New Delhi this morning amid all the pomp which surrounds a man who is almost absolute monarch over 350,000,000 people. He will depart for London on Saturday.

No Pomp for Gandhi.

Mahatma Gandhi and his chief all-India Nationalist congress lieutenants, all half naked like himself, arrived at the same time as Lord Irwin, but the "holy man," disdaining crowds and pomp, left the train at a suburb and trudged a few miles in the boiling sun to his home.

This afternoon he conferred with Lord Irwin about the procedure at the coming round table conference, and then took his leave, saying goodbye and expressing his good wishes to the man who fought him and jailed him, but for whom, without, he has strong personal attachment.

Working at his spinning wheel, Gandhi tonight was a strange character in this flag bedecked city teeming with thousands of gold braided officials and elegantly gowned women, dancing away the hours until the new viceroy, Lord Willingdon, former governor general of Canada, arrives tomorrow morning. He will be sworn in Saturday afternoon as the highest paid governor general of the British, his salary being $100,000 per year.

Will Export British Cloth.

Soon after his arrival Gandhi conferred with Indian mill owners about a plan to export $25,000,000 worth of foreign cloth, mostly British, which the Indians calculate will ruin Manchester's trade with India once and for all. It was stated that a company to handle the dumping abroad will start operations next month regardless of protests from London.

Lord Irwin, in his farewell speech to the mill owners today, complained that Gandhi's congress party is taking advantage of the truce with Britain to "reorganize their forces for further struggle."

"This contains germs of trouble and is a menace to peace," he said. "It imposes a duty on the government to prepare counter action."

Call More Deadly "War."

Almost simultaneously Vallabhbhai Patel, president of the Nationalist congress, urged a renewal of the struggle against British rule, calling for a more drastic campaign than ever.

"Those who are afraid of death on the gallows," he declared, "should migrate to foreign countries and dispose of their property. In the next fight you will have to face bullets and the gallows. You can win independence only by giving your lives. It is better for you to remain naked than to wear foreign cloth. You must not be deceived by the Delhi truce; it is only temporary and gives us the possibility of strengthening our forces and determining our future policy."

Carries Letter to Gandhi.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, April 16.—It is learned that Lord Willingdon, the new viceroy to India, due in India tomorrow, carries an official letter from Prime Minister MacDonald to Mahatma Gandhi, the Nationalist leader, inviting him to attend the new round table conference. This is the first official recognition of Gandhi, all former approaches having been informal. Lord Willingdon and the retiring viceroy, Lord Irwin, will meet with Gandhi soon after the former's arrival to discuss plans of the forthcoming conference. Lord Irwin will be appointed an additional British delegate to the party.

3 CONGRESSMEN ASKED POSITION ON DRY REPEAL

In a letter to three United States congressmen from Illinois Seymour Wheeler, commander of the Illinois division of the Crusaders, yesterday asked the congressmen if they would support a resolution at the next session of congress calling for the submission to the states of the repeal of the 18th amendment.

"Gov. Summer, in his statement of reasons for vetoing the Illinois prohibition repeal bill, takes the definite position that that part of the Republican platform of the state at last November's election which pertains to the three prohibition referendum propositions does not bind the members of the state legislature or the governor, but that it does bind the Republican members of congress," Mr. Wheeler said in his letter.

"We believe it will be reasonable to assume, if you do not answer, that you take a position contrary to that of the governor—namely: that the vote does not obligate Republican members of congress from this state."

The letter was sent to Congressman at Large Richard Yates and Congressman Morton Stahl of the Second district and Carl R. Chittenden of the Tenth district.

WRECK DELAYS PASSENGERS ON COAST LIMITED

Four freight cars were derailed yesterday morning on the Rock Island's tracks between Mokena and the village of New Lenox. The accident prevented the passing of any other trains between 8:30 a. m. and 12:45 p. m. The Golden State Limited, on the way from California to Chicago, was two and one-half hours late, having been backed up to Joliet and switched to the Chicago and Alton tracks there for the last lap of its journey. On the train were Mrs. J. Ogden Arnold, Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins, wife of the president of the University of Chicago, and Louis B. Mayer, motion picture magnate.

Gifted and gracious, Mrs. Hubert Burnham brings added honor to a name already famous in Chicago's history. For it was her husband's father who planned Chicago's first World's Fair, just as his son is architect for Chicago's 1933 Century of Progress Exposition.

To the distinguished guests who come to the Burnham home, Mrs. Burnham serves only one coffee—McLaughlin's Manor House.

"Many of my guests are real coffee lovers," says Mrs. Burnham, "so I must have a coffee I can depend upon. That is why I serve only Manor House; its flavor never varies."

A coffee whose flavor never varies! Because McLaughlin's Manor House meets this supreme test of the coffee expert's skill, it is served by more Chicago coffee lovers than is any other quality blend. A coffee is known by the company it keeps.

Tune in W-G-N every Sunday night, 7 to 8 o'clock, for the Manor House Dramatizations of the Grand Operas with stars singing the principal arias.

Mrs. Hubert Burnham

A happy mother of three fine children, Mrs. Burnham brightens the lives of many people through her generous work as a board member of the Grove House for convalescing working girls, as chairman of Evanston's White Elephant Sale, and as an active supporter of the Red, White and Blue, Chicago Lying-in Hospital, and the Southern Women's Educational Alliance. She is never too occupied, however, to be a gracious hostess... and how smart are the parties she gives in her home at Burnham Road in Evanston—where Sheridan Road winds through the family estate. Luncheons in her sun-drenched tropical patio... dinners under the stars... playing fountain... orchids blooming... conversation sparkling... while Mrs. Burnham serves the coffee—always Manor House, "because," as she says, "I know that its flavor never varies."

Mrs. Burnham breakfasts in the patio on orange juice, toast and Manor House Coffee—its flavor doubly important with such a light breakfast.

TRACE RUSSELL
ARTICLES OF ART
TO MOORE NIECEEvidence Heard in Suit of Actress' Daughter.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 15.—[Special.]—Further details of how the jewelry and valuables disappeared from the estate of the late Lillian Russell were revealed today in Orphans' court. Mrs. Dorothy Russell Calvert, a daughter, is suing to break the will of the late Alexander P. Moore, former newspaper publisher and diplomat, who married Miss Russell after the close of her stage career and who until his death was executor of her estate.

At the close of today's hearing Judge Thomas P. Trimble remarked that there was much evidence of fraud in disposing of Lillian Russell's effects and said the hearing was open for presentation of evidence showing any fraudulent intent of the executor.

Today's testimony included evidence indicating that some of the 121 articles of art and jewelry missing from the estate found their way into the possession of Mrs. Mildred Martin, a niece of the late ambassador and a beneficiary of his contested will.

Valuable Articles Sold.

H. W. Hilber, superintendent of the Coronado apartments, testified that several months ago Mrs. Martin became an ardent tenant, and that a key was filed against her furniture.

Among the articles seized, Hilber said, were valuable tapestries, a glass bowl described as a work of art, candlesticks, chairs, five rugs and a mirror.

Some of the seized articles have been sold and others are still in possession of the Coronado company, Hilber testified.

Mrs. Martin was called to the stand and testified she did not know whether a grand piano taken to the embassy in Spain when Moore was ambassador had been that of Lillian Russell or not.

Mrs. Martin said a bowl seized from her Coronado apartment under Levy had been a possession of Miss Russell. She said a ruby diamond ring had been given her by her uncle, Moore, after Miss Russell's death. She said Edward Reuss of New York had given her a three piece table and a black silver for necklaces which had been Miss Russell's.

Records of auction of Miss Russell's effects reveal that Reuss purchased the necklaces. The auction had been withdrawn from the sale.

Denouement of Necklaces.

The sale of Miss Russell's $5,000 pearl necklace for $1,000, testified yesterday, was made possible by a stenographic error in copying an appraisal. Attorney Robert H. Dodd, representing the Union Trust company, a co-trustee with Moore, explained. Judge Trimble then said:

"Any man who would do this is not entitled to any money from this court, be he dead or alive."

Dodd told the court that O. P. Seidl, Pittsburgh jeweler, had appraised the necklace, consisting of six-to-seven matched pearls and a diamond clasp, at $10,000 before it was sent to New York, where Smith Klein, jewel expert, valued it at $8,000.

A stenographer copying Seidl's appraisal dropped a cipher from the figure, making the value seem $1,000, Dodd said. At that figure it was sold ostensibly to T. A. Grant, an associate of Moore in the latter's newspaper interests. Grant testified yesterday he never actually saw the string.

Kelms, in a deposition introduced yesterday, told of certifying the necklace and turning it, with a $15,000 marquis diamond ring, over to Moore.

Secretary Testifies.

Miss Jessie Butterfield, former secretary to Moore, testified regarding shipment of rug and an oil painting by Howard Chandler Christy of Lillian Russell to the embassy in Peru in 1923, after Moore had been named to that post.

Among articles allegedly missing

PRINCE STRICKEN

from Miss Russell's effects is an oriental rug known as "Walls of Jerusalem," said to be very valuable.

Early in the afternoon session of court Mrs. Calvert testified through one of her attorneys, Herman Pollack of New York, six letters which had been written to her by her mother in 1918, and which had been in the possession of Mrs. Lena Chapman of Princeton place, a maid of Lillian Russell, both before and after Miss Russell's marriage to Moore.

Under cross-examination by Pollack, Mrs. Chapman admitted having had the letters. She said she found them on a floor after removal of furniture from the Moore mansion and that, because of her affection for Miss Russell, had kept them.

Her husband, she said, had turned them over to John Wicks of counsel for the Moore estate. Wicks gave them to Pollack.

The will was very brief, occupying half a sheet of typewritten copy, and does not mention either the six-year-old daughter or any of the other members of the Longworth family. It reads:

RAPID CHANGE TURNS SCHOOL TO CAFETERIA

Pupils Eat in Classroom at Teachers' College.

BY META GIVEN.

A busy schoolroom one minute and a cafeteria luncheon five minutes later. Such is the sudden transformation which takes place in the third grade room of the Chicago Teachers College, 461 Wrightwood avenue, at 11:30 each school day.

The change is not only speedy but orderly. Mrs. Martha Massie, who pushes desks back, sets up tables and chairs, and the counter or cafeteria line and haul up from the kitchen the dumb waiter loaded with trays, napkins, silver, trays, etc., and the food is arranged attractively on plates and trays at the counter.

Flats Are Served.

At 11 o'clock everything is ready and when the whistle blows on the ground the children from the second and third grades file in, pick up a tray, a napkin, the silver, a plate which has already been served with some food (meat and vegetable), a sandwich or more, the drink and dessert.

With loaded trays they pass into their own room and sit at their tables to eat with student teachers or with hosts or hostesses who insist upon the best of table manners and proper table conversation. When they have finished eating, they bring their trays back into the lunchroom and remove the refuse from their trays to the kitchen and prepared for serving by another set of helpers.

Speech Is Popular.

Mrs. Massie, the dietitian, plans the menu. Each day she posts them where mothers who visit the school may see them and plan their evening meal accordingly. The menu is well balanced and includes a wide variety of foods that are important in the child's diet. Cooked and raw vegetables, fresh and canned fruits, milk, eggs, salads, fish once a week and meat once or twice a week, sandwiches of many varieties, cereals, milk, a sweet juice and a dessert are the principal foods used.

Contrary to the prevailing idea, spinach, cottage cheese, and whole wheat bread are relished by the children and second helpings of them are often asked for. But soups are not as a rule enjoyed. A rich home made vegetable soup is well received on cool days, but creamed soups never. Doubtless the creamed soup is too mild in flavor to appeal to the palate.

Children who have become accustomed to soup to highly flavored food have interest in milk and other nutritious bland foods that are important in the child's diet. Therefore Mrs. Massie found it necessary to include a portion of the milk in puddings, cocoa, and creamed dishes.

Younger, Less Difficult.

The younger children do not have to worry about difficult as the older ones and for this reason they have less difficulty in observing the lunchroom rules. The rule is that every child must eat some of each food served when he brings a written request from home concerning some article of food which is forbidden by the diet.

None of the daily luncheon menus are as follows:

MONDAY—Creamed beef, baked potatoes, tomato soup, apple, orange juice.

TUESDAY—Vegetable soup, rice and cheese, baked fish, sliced ham, apples, cookies.

WEDNESDAY—Creamed potatoes, raw carrots, jelly sandwiches, sliced apples, milk.

THURSDAY—Bacon, mashed potatoes, apple sauce, custard, chocolate pudding, cream pie.

FRIDAY—Baked salmon, lima beans, raisin cake, apple sauce, milk.

At 1 o'clock all signs of luncheon have disappeared. Baked dishes, trays have gone down to the kitchen in the dumb waiter. Desks are put back into place and again the third grade room becomes a schoolroom.

"Weggy-te-Ball!" That Is Lo Yeng, the Vegetable Man

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Songs have been sung and stories told of the springtime of the Rockies. Had we gifted fingers that could recreate melody and theme in color harmonies, we would dip our brush of memory into the sunset and paint a picture of Lo Yeng in his garden of singing springs.

Not because his gods had blessed Lo Yeng with beauty of face or form, or with a vast knowledge, or an exalted position. He was only a humble product of Chihli and of San Francisco's Chinatown and, in the unadorned terms of his trade, a peddler of vegetables.

But there are distinctions to be made even among the vendors of carrots and cabbages. The delicate sense of beauty peculiar to his race was Lo Yeng's, and a flawless tact that was as frequently the source of amusement as of wonderment among his clientele. And, paradoxical attributes of genius, the wisdom of age and the naivete of childhood were his.

Should curiosity be expressed concerning the whereof of Lo Yeng's advent to the mountains, there are still a few old timers in the region who tell a romantic tale of lost Indian mines, of rumors that drifted across the Mojave desert many years ago and brought back to New Mexico—to the rugged blue range named by some unknown follower in the wake of the Spanish conquistadores the Via de Cruces, Way of the Crosses—a number of California prospecting parties. With one of these, in the capacity of cook, came Lo Yeng.

Hope, Labor, Disappointment.

High hope, hard labor, disappointment, and the lure of another mine on a farther horizon. So through the recurring phases of a miner's career passed Lo Yeng's employers.

But for Lo Yeng there were in the mountains little echoes and signs of remembrance—the murmur the wind made moving over a mesa of Indian paint brushes, brilliant as a miniature sea of red poppies in a mandarin's garden; glints from the snow on a distant peak like the play of light on the yellow tiles and the scarlet and blue lacquer of the pagodas of Wau Shou Shan, the Mountain of Ten Thousand Lives; and the golden showers of April falling fragrantly as does China's "little rain."

Lo Yeng stayed. He terraced a hillside and laid out his vegetable plot. He built himself a small house with emerald green eaves and surrounded it with cherry and plum and crabapple trees and with myriads of flowers—yellow tulips, larkspur, Manchurian lilies with petals like radiant wings of butterflies, hollyhocks, mint, and dahlias, and fireweed.

"Weggy-te-Ball Weggy-te-Ball!" But only the newcomer asks ques-

FULL FLAVORED FOOD IS RECOMMENDED IF THE BUDGET IS LOW

Full flavored foods like meat, tomatoes and onions should be used as much as possible by persons living on a minimum food supply, advises the federal bureau of home economics.

"Meat brings to limited diets the highly desirable proteins, mineral salts and fat, and the excellent flavor of meat makes it easier to consume the relatively large proportions of cereals which are the basis of the low cost meals outlined by the bureau," the government dietitians report.

Miss Lucy M. Alexander, food specialist of the bureau, offers the opinion that the more economical cuts of meat are just as palatable as the other cuts if properly cooked. Combinations are suggested through well flavored pot roasts, stews, meat pies, meat loaves, and soups with vegetables such as potatoes, tomatoes, onions, carrots, turnips, cabbage, spinach, collards, and beans.

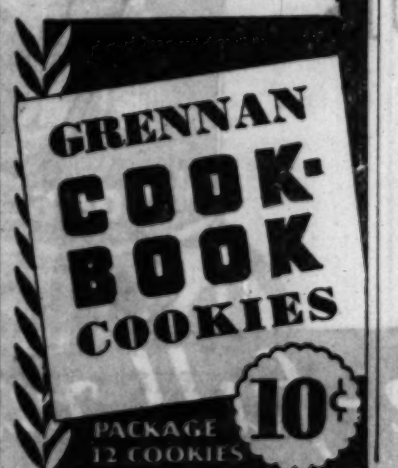

A Teller of Romantic Stories.

Lo Yeng smiled down from under the brim of an immense Mexican sombrero. He clambered down from the seat and drew aside the canvas covering. There were the bunches of round red radishes with white tips; the yellow butter beans, and the green string beans; new onions like pearl buttons, and coral colored carrots; creamy heads of cauliflower, crisp heads of lettuce, firm heads of cabbage; white celery stalks, smooth purple eggplants, cucumbers, and tomatoes; and the bulging pea pods.

We heaped up a huge basket. Word had reached Lo Yeng of the return of a prodigal. From a box carefully placed under the seat came a fragrant array of fruit, blossoms and honeyuckle. On top of these Lo Yeng laid a wooden toy dragon, the Lung, the Sky Dragon, guardian of the heavens and fairyland. Lo Yeng pointed to a bend in the road. He had not forgotten. We were both remembering that a little girl with a great curiosity was wont to wait there for the vegetable wagon to come that she might climb up into the seat behind the gray mule and listen to marvelous stories of a strange, lovely land on the other side of the world which was called the Flowery Kingdom.

SHOWS INCREASE IN PRODUCE SENT TO MARKET HERE

U.S. Report Gives Figures on 3 Months' Total.

Figures compiled by W. H. Hall, fruit and vegetable reporter for the Chicago office of the United States department of agriculture, bureau of agricultural economics, show that carload lots of 16 leading varieties of fruits and vegetables unloaded here in the first three months of the year totaled 296 more than for the same period in 1930.

Chicago has eaten 236 more carloads of oranges than in the same period in 1930; 196 more carloads of grapefruit; 151 more carloads of apples, and 123 more carloads of tangerines.

Other Increases Noted.

Other foods for which an increase in consumption is indicated follow: Lemons, 44 carloads more; celery, 24 more; nine more of cabbage, and five more of grapes.

Car lot unloadings up to March 31 totaled 11,476 as compared with 11,180 for these fruits and vegetables in 1930. But there were some of the commodities which showed a loss in consumption as compared to a year ago and as compared to receipts of other foods. The most apparent loss is that of lettuce, which is 197 carloads behind 1930, when there was a total of 1,235 carloads in three months.

Big Drop in Tomatoes.

The number of carloads of tomatoes unloaded here showed a drop of 113. There were 81 fewer car lots of onions. Potatoes fell off 63 car lots, there being a total of 8,381; strawberries dropped 58 carloads, and sweet potatoes, 29 carloads.

17,503 Carloads of Carrots
Received for Chicago Market

With carrots arriving daily in Chicago by the carloads, consumption is keeping near the mark of last year. So far this year 17,503 freight cars loaded with the yellow vegetables have been received here, of which 11,930 were those produced in northern states in 1930 and 5,573 have been new carrots from southern states.

Cherries Arrive; Join Grapes and Pineapples as Luxuries

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

When the first 1931 fresh sweet cherries arrived in Chicago this week from California, another note of spring was sounded. Wholesale prices indicated, however, that at least three fruits, including the cherries, can be called luxuries, while others are selling at approximately half the scale of one year ago.

Officials at the Chicago fruit auction classed the cherries with pineapples and grapes as the outstanding luxuries in fruits present, based on prices. Eight pound boxes of cherries sold at auction brought $1.25 pound wholesale.

"If the price is too high, wait three or possibly four weeks and cherries even larger and more luscious will be selling for 20 to 25 cents a pound," advises Charles W. Irrgang. He is vice president and one of the auctioneers of the establishment where nearly all of the metropolitan supplies of fresh fruits are bargained for daily.

Pineapples Are Late.

Pineapples, he indicates, are two to three weeks late in comparison to last year. Eight to ten carloads were being sold daily in April, 1930, at a price of $2.50 per crate, while the carload per day now being auctioned is selling wholesale at $5 and $6 per crate. Grapes, too, slide into the

BIG POTATO CROP SEEN FOR 1931; PRICES TO DROP

Cheap potatoes are in prospect for next year if weather conditions for the 1931 season are normal and if planting intentions of growers in the United States are followed.

This prediction is made on the basis of a report and warning issued by C. C. Teague, vice chairman of the federal farm board. He says the outlook on intentions to plant can be expected to bring a total crop of 430,000,000 bushels of spuds, as compared with 361,000,000 bushels produced in 1930. Difficulty has been experienced in selling the 1930 crop at satisfactory prices and past experiences show that prices realized by growers are in direct relation to the size of the crop. Mr. Teague predicts growers therefore can expect the lowest prices they have had for years if they carry out their intentions of a 10 per cent increase in potato acreage.

OUTDOOR MARKET BLOSSOMS WITH SPRING'S COMING

Shoppers Walk to Barter for Peas, Oranges.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

Spring may come through your window on a frolicsome breeze this morning. Again, this being Chicago, it may not. But whatever its mood, spring is here, and spring is the time to skip out of the rut into new paths, be it flirtations, frocks, or foods.

So this morning, instead of going to the telephone for the usual exchange of questions and answers as to the tenderness of the grocer's beans and the greenness of his peas, get out your car or put on a pair of walking shoes and go a-marketing. Fruits and vegetables in all their glory await you, earliest and choicest offerings of southern fields, inspiration for a month of menus to be garnered in a single morning.

Markets Spring Up.

In this first fortnight of spring weather outdoor markets have sprung up on vacant lots, at busy intersections, until no neighborhood is without one. Set forth in almost any direction and presently you will come upon a mushroom growth of stalls, hedged around with throngs of women shoppers.

Even before you get there, a babel of voices will drift down the street toward you and above it all you will distinguish the clear tenor cry, "Two dozen oranges, two dozen, two dozen!" or "Buy here, new peas, new peas!" to lure the queuing customer toward bargains succulent and plentiful.

Now step forward to the fringe of the crowd and get your bearings. If this were Paris or Rome, artists would be at work immortalizing a flea or rag market, but in workaday Chicago the public is here merely to buy.

Seems Set for Painter.

The scene is set for the painter: brilliant scarlet and ochre heaps of apples, strawberries, bananas, oranges, next to green bales of endive, lettuce, peas, purple cabbages, golden carrots, pearl white onions, and turnips. Dark faced clerks with white tunics and eloquent sweeping gestures, or tawny country lads in blue jeans; women, hunched over or wearing slippers, carrying great market bags next to women in furs and new straw bonnets. On the fringe of the crowd you are safe; venture forward but a foot and you are in some one's territory, fair mark for his salesmanship. The tenor high C drops an octave, becomes insinuating, almost confidential, as its wares are extolled. Two hands filled with oranges are extended for you to examine and approve. If you move to withdraw, the stream of eloquence redoubles, and you are followed to the very limits of the territory with every intendment of enhanced value and lowered price. But once over the line into the next man's booth or in the neutral borderland you are safe.

Cue to Further Proceedings.

At this point it may be well to take a cue as to further proceedings from an habitué of the place. Here is a petite pretty woman followed by four children, staid steps all the way from three up to seven or eight years old. Oblivious of arguments she moves deeply to the oranges she wants, feels of them, deliberates until the price drops to her level and orders two dozen.

Every one in the family already is carrying a package, but now there is a grab for the oranges. Diplomatic, by the sake whether any one wants an orange. Every one does. She orders another dozen. Then noting our interest she turns to us with a smile: "It's better to buy oranges than pay doctor bills, and oranges can't hurt any one," she remarks. "We all like to go out marketing—we behave much better walking over here than if we stayed at home."

As if to bear out her assertion, a prompt and polite offer of oranges comes from the two older children. When we confess that our hunger for oranges already has been appeased this morning, we are guided to other quarters. At a vegetable stall, under our guardian angel's eye, we acquire a sackful of lettuce in fairly creditable manner.

At the next booth the proprietor can scarcely be restrained from presenting us with a bushel basket of white turnips; we manage to secure the more portable peas instead. Then we are escorted to a booth of rhubarb and thence to table set with luscious small boxes of strawberries. Not until we have a capacity load do our new friends take leave of us. As we watch the burdened train make its way through the crowds, we decide not to return to this place of tempting bargains without an automobile.

HOW'LL YOU HAVE YOUR RHUBARB—SAUCE OR IN PIE?

If Latter Is Preferred, the Name Is Pieplant.

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

It may be rhubarb to you, but it's always been pieplant to me. Rhubarb may be the only fruit—and it really isn't a fruit—that has any character when stewed or made into a sauce, but why do that when you can make a pie out of it?

Apple pie may spell order and a man's idea of a proper dessert—or is that a libel?—but pieplant has everything that one could ask when made into a pie—flavor and tang and the satisfaction of a sweet.

And it's not a plant that any one with a few feet of black dirt needs be denied in this part of the world. Give it a chance and it will grow all over your lawn and even climb down the basement stairs; you will have more than you ever could use. My strongest memories are of two small girls with a business sense who used to tie up what their family might have let languish and sell it from door to door where there were no dogs.

Sugar or Cinnamon?

Of course, if you insist on a sauce, it can be done plain with sugar to taste, which generally means more than seems right and proper, or with the addition of cinnamon. One-half as much sugar as rhubarb is the rule generally given for rhubarb sauce, but it depends on the rhubarb and the family. The amount of cinnamon should be small, but is also up to you, or lemon may be added.

Baked rhubarb is another dish that is well liked, particularly because the rhubarb, if baked properly, retains its shape and color.

But the most welcome property to the housewife who does her own canning is the ease with which rhubarb may be put down for the winter. The cold pack method, entailing no cooking, can be used. According to one recipe, the rhubarb is merely put into jars and cold water is allowed to run through them for 26 minutes. Then the covers are put on and it is ready to pack away.

Here Are Recipes.

There are many varieties and ways to preserve rhubarb in combination with fruits such as pineapples, figs, and strawberries. A recipe for spiced preserved rhubarb includes 2½ pounds of rhubarb, 2 cups of sugar, ½ cup of vinegar, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, and a half teaspoon of cloves. The rhubarb is skinned and cut into one inch pieces. The other ingredients are added and the mixture cooked slowly two or three hours until it is the consistency of marmalade.

There are two schools on the subject of rhubarb pie. The schism lies in whether you like an egg in your pie or not. The egg generally is preferred by the users of the term pieplant. Here is the recipe for the filling:

2 cups cut up rhubarb 1 cup sugar

2 Tbsp. Flour 5 Eggs

Line a pie pan with plain paste. Wash and peel the rhubarb, cut it into small pieces, dredge with flour until each piece is white. Mix the egg yolks, sugar, and rhubarb and place in the pie pan. Dot with butter. Cover with a top crust or, if you prefer, leave open and use meringue. Bake in a hot oven first and then turn it down and bake for forty minutes.

The other recipe includes the same amount of sugar, flour, and rhubarb, and is cooked the same amount of time; only the eggs are lacking. Another dish that is liked by rhubarb fans is Rhubarb Brown Betty.

2 cups bread crumbs rhubarb ¼ cup melted butter Grated rind and juice 1 cup sugar 2 cups slightly cooked Raisins

Mix crumbs and butter. Cover bottom of baking dish with crumbs and spread over half the rhubarb. Sprinkle with half the sugar, lemon juice, and nutmeg. Repeat. Bake 90 minutes in moderate oven.

STUDY LABELS BEFORE BUYING, OFFICIALS ADVISE

They Tell Ingredients of Food Products.

Watch the labels on the packages and canned foods you buy. This admonition, voiced by Dr. W. R. White of the federal food and drug administration, in Washington, describes in a few words a most complete and much needed protection that housewives are given constantly in their food purchases.

"We check, by rigid inspection and legal prosecutions, the constant attempts to evade the pure food law," declares the administration official, "and frequently go to considerable expense and trouble to see that the products offered in containers are truly represented by outward description."

The housewife, however, who examines the label is not only aided in selecting the ingredients in foodstuffs which she desires but, by comparing the prices and weights or volumes of actual contents of various sized containers, buys more economically.

Label Tells Quantity.

"It will pay to note the statement of quantity on the container," says Dr. White. "Some cans or bottles do not contain as much as the buyer would be led to believe, but the quantity of contents statement on the label is required by law to be correct. If it is not correct officials enforcing the food and drug act take the necessary action to see that the manufacturer makes the correction."

An example of the many food lines which might be watched for this description is that of olive or other salad oils, of which there is an increasing variety. Olive oil has been a food of the ancients, and still one of the most esteemed. Yet some vegetable oils, such as cottonseed oil, are frequently mixed with olive oil and a saving in cost effected.

This practice, officials point out, is entirely legal, and the resulting products quite satisfactory, but the ingredients must be plainly indicated upon the label as a safeguard to the consumer as well as manufacturer of olive oil.

Read Label Carefully.

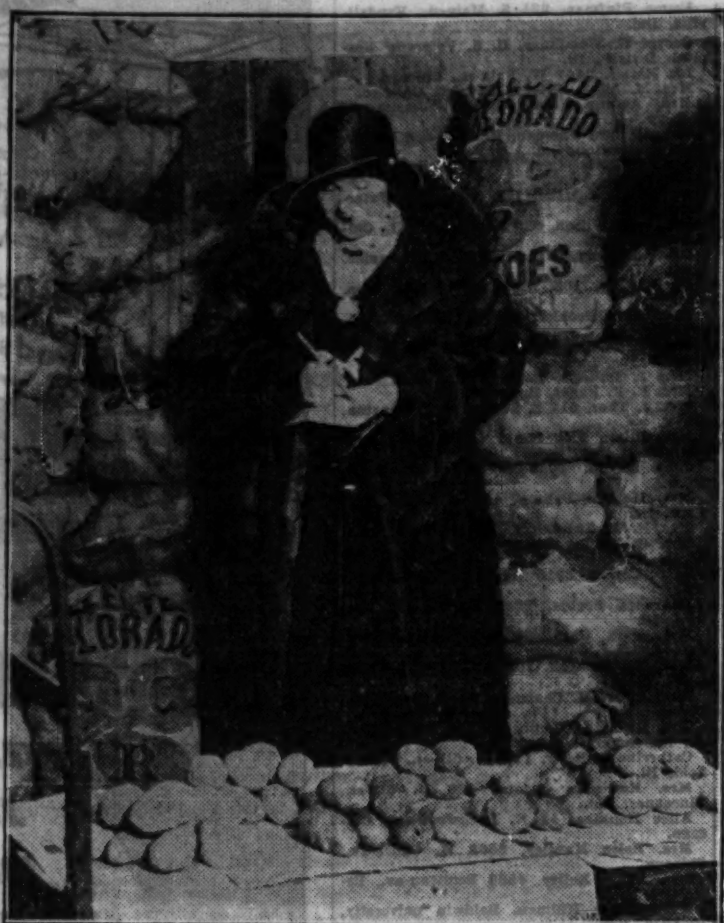

"A careful reading of the label will enable the buyer to find this out," explains Dr. White. "A housewife who wants pure olive oil should not be satisfied with a cottonseed oil and olive oil mixture. There are many good edible oils on the market—it is simply up to modern to decide which kind she wants and then make sure that she gets it."

Another line of foodstuffs which the consumer may watch for printed labels is in such canned foods as condensed milk. Recent letters to THE TRIBUNE tell of experiences of local consumers in being misled in purchasing such items at special sale prices and without being aware that a lowering of price may be accompanied by decrease in size of the container.

"Several of my neighbors and myself stocked up on several cans of condensed milk at a special low price," declares G. W. of 918 Lawrence avenue, "after being informed by the clerk that this was a special sale. Imagine our surprise on returning home to find that they have changed the size of the can from 16 ounces to 14½ ounces. Fresh milk has been reduced 1 cent a quart, but the price of condensed milk has increased."

Consumers have a right to know the composition, quality, efficiency, limitations—the whole truth about the products they buy, states W. R. M. Wharton, eastern district chief in the food and drug administration. If they will insist upon exercising and holding this right the manufacturers of the country can do nothing else than comply with their demands.

Even Potatoes Offer Wide Variety

Chicago is such a center for food distribution that even the wife of a commission merchant specializing in spuds and onions is puzzled in making a selection of potatoes. Mrs. Robert Radtke looks over samples that include in the first row, left to right: Idaho russets; the Ohio, from Dakota; Colorado McClure, Wisconsin round white, and, in the second row: Nancy Hall yellow yams, from Tennessee; Triumph, from Nebraska, and New Triumph, from Texas. (TRIBUNE Photo.)

"The public will not get the fullest benefit from the enforcement of the national pure food law until it has a fuller understanding of what food and drug labels mean," he adds. "In order to understand what labels mean the consumer must know how to read them—must be aware of the significance of words used to name and describe products—must know definitions and standards."

Mr. Wharton is also of the firm conviction that the storekeeper and his clerks have a duty to perform in assisting the buyer to learn what labels mean. They have an obligation, he says, to know how to read labels correctly themselves and properly interpret them to customers.

"Moreover," he asserts, "in every retail store there should be a ready, truthful, and agreeable response to any question regarding the kind, quality, grade, and relative value of any product on sale."

THE LOWLY ONION RANKS HIGH IN CULINARY WORLD

Adds Supreme Touch to All Good Soups.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

"Among them the onion, which ranks with the apple and the nut in the chief place of honor of earth's fruits."

So Robert Louis Stevenson wrote of the plain, every day, terribly misunderstood, and much maligned onion. In these glowing terms he helped rescue the Cinderella of the vegetable kingdom from oppression by her cruel sisters, the tomato and the potato, and proclaimed her amazing virtues to the world. Likewise cooks and chefs, really worthy of the name and traditions of their successors, declare with the supreme touch in all good soups, stews, and sauces if not the foundation for a culinary masterpiece.

Persia, the country that gave us rugs, cats, and Omar Khayyam, is responsible for this ancient foodstuff. No doubt Xerxes on setting forth to conquer Greece had plenty of onions in his commissary. They were in high favor in the golden age of Pericles, and Herodotus, the Greek historian, says that in 450 B. C. an inscription on the great Pyramid stated that a sum amounting to 1,600 talents had been paid for onions, radishes, and garlic consumed by workmen during the process of erection. How many of us who pride ourselves today, however, on our towering skyscrapers stop to think that some of the effort that brought them into being was furnished by Italians and other dark eyed races with the sweet essence of onions on their breath?

Valuable as a Food.

In food value alone this small round bulb deserves an important place in our diet as well as third rank among the truck crops grown in America. It justly claims the title of spring tonic for here is tied up a large amount of tissue building material in the form of protein and mineral salts. Then, too, the starch content is high, giving both heat and energy to the body.

Is it not our best chefs and cooks who set our fashions in food, and where is there one to be found who has not a few onions tucked up his sleeve and a string of recipes concerning their preparation in his bag of tricks? For the more fastidious there are the household necessities, of course, including sugar, coffee, and parsley, to take away any objectionable odor. In fact there is more than one hostess who never serves the fresh spring greens without their accompanying dish of parsley.

The selection of onions at the market also has much to do with the aroma, for it is an accepted fact that the old ones are stronger than the new and red ones stronger than the white. Spanish and Bermuda onions are particularly recommended as the most delicate and less odoriferous varieties, especially for purposes of cooking. The little spring onion, the scallion, at the height of its popularity during the next two months, is accepted by onion enthusiasts either raw or baked.

Gives Finishing Touch.

Used as a flavoring, the onion gives the finishing touch to many a food masterpiece, but all good cooks will agree that it must be used with artistry and discretion. An epicure will endorse ever just a hint of onion flavor in the cream cheese used as a sandwich filling or in a bowl of spring salad, but add a few extra drops of the precious onion juice and the dish will not prove so popular.

It is in main dishes, however, that the onion really comes into its own. Onion soup, scalloped onions, onion soufflé, stuffed onions, glazed onions, and plain boiled onions are among the favorites. In preparing the vegetable for any one of these dishes the thin skin must first be removed. Place the onions in cold water and peel the skins while they are immersed, starting from the root end. Then for boiling make two gashes on the root end of each and cook them in boiling salted water, and cook 20 to 45 minutes or until soft, but not broken. Then drain, add a small quantity of milk, cook 5 minutes, and season with butter, salt, and pepper.

Recipe for Onion Soup.

ONION SOUP AU GRATIN.
1 bunch of veal.
2 quarts cold water.
1 onion.
1 small carrot.
1 cup minced celery.
1 tablespoon minced parsley.
3 cloves.
1 bay leaf.
2 coriander seeds, crushed.
2 peppercorns.
1 medium sized onion.
1 tablespoon butter.
3 French rolls.
1 cup Parmesan cheese.
Cut meat into small pieces and crack the bone. Put into cold water with the onion, carrot, celery and parsley. Set on back of stove until water becomes red. Then bring slowly to boiling point and simmer at least 2 hours. If more water is needed while simmering use boiling water. Cold or lukewarm water spoils the flavor.
Sausage meat, oysters, nuts, grated cheese, shrimp, or a chicken and mushroom filling make excellent stuffings for onions when combined with white sauce or bread crumbs. In this way the onion becomes a main dish combining both the meat and vegetable. To prepare stuffed onions steam or parboil 30 minutes or until tender, in boiling salted water. Turn upside down to cool and remove part of the centers. Fill the openings, place in a baking dish with a small amount of water, and sprinkle with bread crumbs. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until onions are soft, removing the cover the last ten minutes.

An Easier Way To Wash Clothes —And Do Various Other Hard Jobs in Half the Time

Here's a new method of washing clothes that takes the drudgery out of washing. Everywhere you go, women are using it because it makes living so much easier—so much more worth while. With it, you do any kind of washing—from the stoutest linens to delicately colored children's clothes; costly lingerie—in half the time it takes you to do it now—or less.

And you banish and avoid entirely streaks, spots, that ugly gray look women complain of. And of any kind. In careful laboratory tests a man's blue shirt for instance, was washed 75 times without appreciable fade. This is probably twice the washing the average shirt gets before it is worn out.

How To Do It

You get a package of a preparation called Climalene at any grocery store for a dime. Put 2 tablespoonfuls in a wash tub of water. Use the same kind of soap you ordinarily do. But use only 1/4 the amount you now use. That is all. Then see for yourself the amazing results.

Climalene acts by making water—whether it is hard or medium hard—soft as rain water.

For that reason you use only 1/4 the amount of soap you now use. And thus get "suds" and fade of fine things. Then, due to mildly cleansing properties of its own, it dissolves grime and dirt instantly, thus cutting washing time in half—either in the dishpan or wash tub.

Shop With The Time Saved

Consider what you can do with the time you save. Thousands of women shop, go to the movies, enjoy life with the time they save this way. Do the things you now think only a woman with servants can do.

And have hands carelessly smooth and lovely. For Climalene acts as a beautifying agent to the hands.

Marvelous For Dishes, Too

You use Climalene too, to wash dishes in half the time and have them shine and sparkle marvelously—just as they do in shop windows.

Use too, to clean silver, to remove "bath ring", to make scrubbing, scouring, cleaning of all sorts, far simpler and quicker. Full directions come with every package. Try it. Find out what it can do for you.

DUTCH COOKING ALWAYS PLAIN, BUT IT'S GOOD

Basic Qualities in Food Not Overlooked.

BY META GIVEN.

The stranger who dines for the first time in a Dutch tavern or home is not as a rule enthusiastic about Dutch cooking. His first impression is that there is an unpalatable plainness about it. And since he always associates fine appearance with high quality, he hastily and inaccurately concludes that Dutch food can't be plain and at the same time good.

Those who voice or write the sharpest of criticisms, however, invariably acknowledge that the ultra-delicate palette does in a very short time become accustomed to Dutch food. As puzzling as it may seem, the quality which so quickly wins approval for Dutch food is the cleanliness of its preparation.

Dutch housewives are famous for being clean about their cooking. While they may omit the little artistic touches in serving, they do not forget the many details that count in producing the fine basic qualities in food—color, flavor and texture.

No nationality has set a higher standard for quality in milk, butter and cheese than have the Dutch. Explains the world over praise their Edam and Gouda cheese. The former cheese is one that especially intrigues the American palate.

Get Last Bit of Goodness.

When we cut into a big red shell of Edam, we never leave off until we have excavated the whole. And still we refuse to be through with it. The hollow shell filled with overflowing with well cooked spaghetti is baked in the oven to yield that last bit of goodness which so tightly clings to the rind.

In addition to establishing high standards for many staple foods, the Dutch have made valuable contributions in the way of cooking equipment. Historians credit them with making the first brass cooking utensils as well as the first Dutch ovens, waffle irons and a number of pieces of equipment used for baking, broiling and stewing in the old colonial fireplaces and brick ovens.

Both history and tradition indicate that a number of the foods popular with the early colonists were of the Dutch origin. Two that have spread to all parts of the country are doughnuts and Philadelphia scrapple. Doughnuts always were kept on hand in the early Dutch colonial home. The chronicler tells us that the Dutch feasible sweetener was graced with immense apple pies or suet tarts of preserved peaches or pears, but it was always sure to boast an enormous dish of balls of sweetened dough fried in hog's fat, doughnuts or olykoeks, as they were called.

Oly Bollen a Dutch Doughnut. Mrs. Nellie Veneklasen, a Dutch housewife in Roseland, supplies us today with a recipe for oly bollen, a typical Dutch doughnut. It differs from our doughnut in two ways. It contains fruit and is not rolled and cut out. The next recipe which Mrs. Veneklasen gives us is a novelty to the average American—snyboonen—an imported bean that comes from Holland.

Snyboonen are prepared by shredding tender green beans of the French variety and salting them down in barrels just like sauerkraut. The salt preserves the color and flavor remarkably well. The beans are very salty, but excess salt is removed by soaking the beans in fresh water over night. Snyboonen are cooked with meat and potatoes. Unsalted snyboonen are also available in cans. Both varieties are delicious when cooked in the way Mrs. Veneklasen suggests.

From eight recipes which Mrs. Veneklasen furnishes two or more complete Dutch menus may be prepared. Dutch cheese and Holland rye bread should be used to round out any Dutch meal. Holland rye bread is a solid, firm loaf of steamed bread made from the cracked grains of rye instead of rye flour.

Calda rarely are eaten in Dutch homes. However, withered lettuce, which is our well known wilted lettuce, is served occasionally. Celerly never is eaten raw; neither is cabbage. Pie is a dessert that is little known, but cake and cookies are common.

which has been added 1 teaspoon of sugar. Stir to blend well. Let stand in a warm place until foamy. This will require from 15 minutes to half an hour. To this yeast mixture add 1 pint of potato water (water drained from boiled potatoes), 1 tablespoon of lard, 1 cup of sugar, 1 cup of scalded milk, 3 eggs and enough bread flour to make a drop batter. Beat hard until smooth and elastic.

Put in a warm place and let rise until double in bulk. This will require about 3 1/2 hours. When light, add 1 1/2 cups of washed and dried raisins or currants. Let rise again until light. This rising will require about half an hour. Have hot fat ready in a deep kettle. Take one tablespoon of dough at a time and drop into the hot fat (350 degrees Fahrenheit) and fry to a golden brown. Yield: About three dozen. More sugar may be added if desired.

Baking Brew.

[A good breakfast dish.] Cover 3 pounds of pork neck bones or spare ribs and 2 pounds of beef brisket with water, add 1 teaspoon of salt for each 3 pounds of meat and cook until meat falls off the bones. Remove bones, being sure to get them all out. Return meat to liquid in which it was cooked. Combine 2 cups buckwheat flour, 2 scant cups corn meal and 2 cups graham flour and mix. Sift these dry ingredients gently into the boiling liquid and meat, stirring to keep smooth. Cook until mixture is very thick, stirring continuously. Pour into loaf bread tins that have been rinsed in cold water. Cool until firm. Slice and fry like mush. Serve with syrup. Yield: One gallon. If stored in cool place it will keep for two weeks.

Snyboonen.

[Main dish.] Soak one quart of snyboonen over night to take the salt out. In the morning drain beans and cook with 2 pounds of pork shoulder in enough fresh water to cover. Add boiling water from time to time to prevent burning. When meat is tender, add 2 quarts of carefully sliced potatoes and steam until done. Remove meat and slice. Gently stir beans and potatoes together so as not to break the potato dice. Place vegetables in the center of the platter and the sliced meat around the edge. Be sure there is not too much water on the vegetables or they will be soggy. This is a characteristic Dutch boiled dinner.

Boerekoek [Kale] and Melworst.

[Main dish.] 1 melworst, about 2 1/2 lbs. kale, 1 lb. pork shoulder, 4 cups diced potatoes. If pork shoulder is used, cook it in salted water until tender. If melworst is used, cook 1/2 hour. Evaporate the liquid until meat is almost dry. In the meantime put the kale in salted water and let stand 1/2 hour. Then cook it in plenty of water 1/2 hour and drain. Squeeze until dry and cut up fine. Add kale to meat, season with salt and pepper. Over this put diced potatoes and steam until the potatoes are done. Take out the meat and

LAMB CHOPS ARE DELICIOUS AND EASY TO PREPARE

Broil, Never Fry, if You Want Them Tender.

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

In the spring appetites become surfeited with the winter diet and demand fresher foods. There is a saying that in winter "one becomes hungry enough to eat anything," and consequently, roasts, stews, rich pastry, candy, hot bread, and buns are the nourishing foods that "stick by a person" during the frigid season. But in the summer appetites become snick and demand lighter foods.

There are few persons who don't like lamb chops. Perhaps their appeal lies in their size. Again, it may be that the person ordering is reducing, and lamb chops are nonfatening. And, too, chops are the friend of the housewife. With a capable butcher and a few simple complements, chops, as the mainstay of a meal, are easy and quick to prepare. But there are a few rules that must be adhered to when lamb chops are the meat course.

Choice Ones from the Loin.

Choice lamb chops are from the loin and cut four to a pound. In cutting the chops butchers might be tempted not to shuck the bone, but there is nothing more disconcerting than to bite down on a supposedly tender morsel and discover, via a sensitive tooth, that there is a piece of bone. The fat should be thinned out so that the chop can be curled into a compact shape.

The chop also should be skinned. There is a fine layer that covers the fat and this should be peeled off before the chop leaves the butcher's hands. An experienced meat cutter will do this, but it is better to remind him than to be sorry afterwards.

Broiling of the Chops.

Now the most important thing, the broiling of the chops. Primarily, have everything that is included in the meal ready. The table should be set, the salad prepared and on the table, the vegetables ready to serve, and the butter warming in the oven. Baked potatoes go well with lamb chops, and these should be cooling in the top of the oven preparatory to inserting the butter.

Never fry lamb chops—broil them. A flame, a little over medium, is used and the chops when served should not be rare, but pink upon cutting. Place the chops rather close together on the grill of the oven. This makes them easier to turn over, and lessens the danger of being burned by the splattering grease. The chops should be turned over just once. Continual handling makes them tough and unpalatable. With the flame adjusted as suggested, the chops should be done enough when brown, to warrant turning over. When the other side is brown the chops are ready to serve.

Hot Lamb Fat for Potatoes.

One will find it more convenient to place the chops along with the baked potato immediately upon the hot plates instead of on a platter and then to each individual consumer. For baked potatoes and lamb chops do not profit by handling. Many persons only eat the heart out of the chop; others also eat the tail, liking the crisp fat. Many cooks pour the hot lamb fat that has dripped into the broiler from the chops on mashed or boiled potatoes. It is really very

YOUR DOG needs a balanced food!

It is too often taken for granted that a dog must have his various ailments, skin troubles and doggy odor. Yet these things can be prevented. Many of the ills and much of the unhappiness of dogs are directly caused by over feeding and by foods not adapted to the dog's digestion.

Now a perfectly balanced ration has been evolved that contains vitamins, proteins and carbohydrates. Ken-L-Ration contains all these necessary food elements in their correct proportions.

good, but one does not want to eat too much of it. And last is what I consider the most important feature of eating lamb chops. It's picking the bone. It might not be the thing to do, but I defy any one to discourage me from picking the bones, for that is one of the reasons I like lamb chops.

OYSTERS LISTED AS SPRING TONIC; SUPPLY IODINE

Oysters are one of the newest foods to be included in the list of "spring tonic" foods. This is because they are rich in both iron and copper, which are necessary for building blood, according to Miss Gladys Stillman, nutrition specialist at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

Most people eat oysters because they are particularly fond of them, but now one can have the additional excuse of eating them because they are excellent from the standpoint of nutrition. In this section of the country, Miss Stillman points out, where there is a limited supply of iodine in the drinking water and the soil, consequently in the food, oysters are especially valuable for supplying iodine to the diet, so that the thyroid gland may function normally.

Oyster stew is perhaps the most popular way of serving this food, she finds. Dishes such as creamed or scalloped oysters, in which the oyster flavor is not quite so strong, usually appeal particularly to those who are just learning to like oysters.

SWEETEST WAY IS EASIEST WAY TO MAN'S HEART

BY FLORA MARTIN.
If you are trying to lead the man to your heart to the altar, try appealing to his sweet tooth. When he comes to call, greet him with a plateful of creamy home made chocolate fudge. And watch him beam all over with pleasure. It's a much better way to capture a young man's fancy than the antiquated method of flogging him to a rooming house and tempting him with a full sized steak, French fried potatoes and all of the accessories that go with it.

In the first place, preparing such a dinner is a long and arduous task. If you are not used to cooking man and meal, you are likely to be worn to a frazzle by dinner time. And it's also chances to one that he won't think the meal compares with the steak dinner his mother used to turn out.

They All Like Sweets.
Most mothers are so busy feeding their offspring the more substantial foods that they neglect to appease their appetites for sweets. So there is plenty of opportunity for you young women to shine as candymakers.

Have yourself all of the worry and work of preparing a big meal. Let a dish of fudge be the bait. Most every young girl has tried her hand at making fudge. She has no doubt tried innumerable recipes until she gets one which turns out a perfect batch of fudge.

Fundamentally most recipes for chocolate fudge are alike. Slight variations, however, are found in the amounts of the ingredients and in the method of making. The whole secret of making fudge of the finest texture lies in cooking it to the right temperature and in cooling it before you commence to stir or beat it.

How to Prevent Sugaring.
About two tablespoons of corn syrup added before cooking will prevent the texture of the candy from being ruined by grains of sugar. The same effect may be obtained by the use of a quarter of a teaspoon of cream of tartar, which inverts the sugar and prevents the crystals from enlarging.

The ingredients can be mixed before cooking or allowed to mix as they cook. As for stirring the candy while it cooks, most of us have been warned against it, and have considered it almost as sinful as breaking one of the ten commandments. Authorities on the subject, however, insist that no damage is done by stirring it while it is in the process of cooking.

After the candy is taken from the fire it should be cooled before it is beaten. A good way to cool it quickly is to place the pan which contains it in a vessel of cold water. As the water becomes warm from contact with the hot pan additional cold water should be added until the bottom of the pan has cooled. Then the candy is ready to be beaten.

Can't Beat It Too Much.
Anything from a wooden spoon to an ordinary kitchen spoon or a flat iron beater may be used to beat the candy. Some have been known to stir it with a knife. All give the same result.

Contrary to popular belief, the texture of the fudge can never be damaged by too much beating. The longer it is beaten, the creamier it gets. When it gets too thick to beat it can even be kneaded.

After it has been kneaded this same mixture can be softened with cream and used as a fudge icing for cake. Or by the addition of more cream, to make it still thinner, it can be used as a sauce for ice cream.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE.
1/4 cup milk.
2 tablespoons corn syrup.
2 squares of bitter chocolate.
2 tablespoons butter.
1/4 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix it all together except vanilla, which goes in when candy is ready for beating. Place on a medium fire and allow to boil until it forms a soft ball in cold water (115 to 125 degrees centigrade). Then add the vanilla to suit taste. After it has cooled beat constantly until it begins to granulate or becomes very thick.

Cuts of Beef and Veal.
In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the Chicago meat council states: "The fore quarter cuts of beef and veal are recommended to the housewife of Chicago as the most economical meat purchases over the coming week-end. Attractive pot roasts and steaks can be prepared from these cuts."

RECIPES OF OLD A BIT PUZZLING TO MODERN COOK

Had a Literary Style All Their Own.

BY ANGELA PETESCH.
The "you attitude" in business letter writing is one of the essentials, but the "you attitude" in recipe writing is a bit ludicrous. Amateur cooks of olden times had a curious conversational style in writing recipes—the "conversational you." It might be called. They had a way of using the word "your" instead of "a" or "the," which, if literally copied might seem startling to the casual reader.

Even today we hear housewives advising their neighbors to "take your milk and your flour . . ."

The collector of manuscript recipes encounters many of these editorial shortcomings. In assembling the book "The Proper New Book of Cookery" the editor found these directions: "The your sugar with a string to a jack in front of the fire . . ." or "Put your brains into a bowl . . ."

Too bad that recipes are not allowed to be printed in this, their original form. The cook would find her work much more exhilarating.

Another recipe instructs, "Put your feet (fortunately only pig's feet are meant) into boiling water in a saucepan." Following such instructions might be a little painful.

The English Housekeeper (1788) carries a very well known recipe, well known, perhaps, because it says to "blanche your tongue, slit it down the middle, and lay it on a soup plate."

Printers and typesetters, too, have a way all their own of getting the right word in the wrong place. When the name of the contributor of a recipe mysteriously finds its way into the first line, a position it had never been given, the recipe reads more like directions for a cannibal feast. "Cut up Mrs. . . . into small squares or shapes! Very tasty."

EX-WIFE TO SUE TO BREAK COOK'S 12 MILLION WILL

Estate Is Bequeathed to Michigan University.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 16.—(AP)—Attorneys for Mrs. Ida C. Cook announced here today that suit will be brought in an effort to break the will of the late William Wilson Cook, noted corporation counsel, by which his $12,000,000 estate was left to the University of Michigan.

Investigation to determine the rights of Mrs. Cook have been under way, said John Chandler Bartlett, one of her attorneys here. When this investigation is completed suit will be filed in the courts of New York, he said.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Cook announced that she had married a second time, to a man named William Wilson Cook, a divorcee of her first husband, who was a partner in the firm of Messinger, Merrill and Merrill, it was disclosed by Bartlett.

Mrs. Cook, 71 years old, who divorced her first husband in 1898, instructed her attorneys that she would not make any public statement concerning the matter until after the suit has been filed. She has been living here for a number of years. Cook died June 4 last year on his estate at Rye, N. Y.

University to Fight.

Detroit, Mich., April 16.—(Special.)—Regents of the University of Michigan will fight to sustain the will of William W. Cook, under which the university was left $12,000,000.

Regent J. O. Murfin made this statement today when it was learned that Mrs. Ida C. Cook, 71 years old, wife of Cook, has notified executors of the estate who will attempt to break the will to gain half the fortune.

President Alexander B. Ruthven said the university had no official notice of the contemplated action. "Any fight against her case must be handled by the agents of the university," he said.

Mrs. Esther Cram of Ann Arbor one of the members of the board of regents, said Murfin was handling the matter.

Cites New York Law.

Mrs. Cook contends that under the law of New York, where Cook resided, a man can change his family by leaving his fortune to a public institution. Such bequests are limited to 50 per cent. Under this clause Mrs. Cook will seek to share in the estate of her husband.

"The regents will take the case to the highest court in the land if necessary," Murfin said. "Mrs. Cook made no attempt to declare the degree void during Mr. Cook's lifetime. I cannot see that she has the slightest claim to share in the estate now," Murfin said.

Cook's gifts to the university total well over $20,000,000. In his will he left a fund estimated between $5,000,000 and $12,000,000, according to the values of certain stocks.

SINKING OF THE VESTRIS RETOLD AT N. Y. HEARING

Owners Sue to Limit Their Liability.

New York, April 16.—(AP)—The story of the sinking of the liner Vestris off the Virginia capes on Nov. 12, 1928, with the loss of 112 lives, told many times before in the series of legal actions and investigations which followed, again was described today by a passenger.

The witness was Cleary James, a Negro pugilist, called by the defense in the hearing before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard on the motion of Lampert & Holt, Ltd., and the Liverpool, Brazil and River Plate Steamship Navigation Company, Ltd., owners and operators of the Vestris, to limit their liabilities to $95,000, the value of the sunken ship and its cargo.

James was a third class passenger to Buenos Aires.

"We had fair weather the first day," he said, "but an acquaintance of mine called my attention to the fact that the boat was listing to starboard. The second day, Sunday, it was rolling so hard I couldn't notice the list, and it got pretty rough before night.

"That night I was thrown out of my bunk and I heard a great noise; it sounded like an explosion. I dressed and went on deck, but an officer told me it was only a large wave and that everything was all right.

"Next morning the list was so bad then that there was three or four feet of water on the starboard side of the dining room. Some of us asked to be moved up to higher quarters and they let us go up to the boat deck. There I saw sailors lowering lifeboats.

"On the starboard side some of the lifeboats were in the water and were hanging against the sides with the roll of the ship, then came the call for the women and children to take to the boats. I saw three sailors try to get into one lifeboat, but an officer called them back and assigned one man to the boat.

"Later it got worse and an officer called out, 'Every one for himself.' Men began running for the boats.

"Did you try to get into one of the boats?" James was asked.

"No, sir, I ran toward the stern because it seemed like the Vestris was higher at that end. While I was running the list became so great that I climbed over the rail and ran along the hull of the ship. It lurched once and I dove into the water in the direction of an overturned boat to get out of the suction.

"When I got there some men had righted the boat and a sailor named Licorice pulled me aboard. Then the Vestris sank. Licorice picked up a lot of other people and we drifted around all night.

"We finally were picked up by the American Shipper about 10 o'clock the next morning."

CHICAGO, APRIL 16.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs today won their first game since the opening of the season, defeating the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 in the eighth inning. The Cubs' victory was a surprise, as they had been considered one of the weakest teams in the league. The Cardinals, on the other hand, were expected to be a strong contender for the pennant. The game was a close one, with the Cubs leading 3-2 in the seventh inning. However, the Cardinals scored two runs in the eighth to take the lead. The Cubs' pitcher, Ed Faber, pitched a strong game, allowing only three runs. The Cardinals' pitcher, Dizzy Dean, pitched a complete game, but was out of luck. The Cubs' manager, Charlie Grimm, praised his team's performance. The Cardinals' manager, Rogers Hornsby, said that his team was disappointed but would try to win the next game. The game was played at Wrigley Field and drew a large crowd.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
George Grantham, that old meanie from Arizona, yesterday selected the eighth inning as the proper time to smack a homer, good for two runs, and add two runs made the score 4 to 3 in favor of the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Chicago Cubs, a tabulation which prevailed to the end, and end.

MAGNIFICO WINS EDGEWOODSTAKE; SOL GILLS 2D

Amelia Victor in Her First Race.

Havre de Grace, Md., April 16.—(Special).—C. V. Whitney's Magnifico, last year a 2 year old, made his first start of the year and won decisively in the Edgewood stake here today.

Amelia, a filly of Joseph E. Whitney's, was the first color bearer of the eastern season for the president of the Westchester Racing association, and won in such handsome fashion that she apparently has many a victory before her. For Amelia the race was the first of her career, even though she is a 3 year old.

Magnifico won by two lengths from the Seagram stable's Sol Gills, which beat My Broom half a length. Albert Robertson was set down by the stewards for three days for rough riding in the race, but his rousing efforts were in a good cause, as the horse was made a ridiculous short price for one with his mediocre record. He paid $3.40 for a $2 mutual.

Wood Fails in Nine Attempts at Boat Mark

Miami Beach, Fla., April 16.—(Special).—Gar Wood raced his Miss America IX nine times over Indian Creek today in an effort to break the world's motorboat speed record of 103.49 miles an hour, but failed by a split second.

Wood's best two way average was 103.08 miles an hour. His highest speed for the day as made on his fifth try at 103.34 miles an hour over the measured nautical mile course.

The present record was set by Kaye Don, British racing car driver, in his Miss England II, on the Panama river at Buenos Aires.

After concluding his runs today, Wood said he was underwhelmed whether he would make further trails at this time. He said it would require several days to recondition the boat.

After making five runs today, ranging in speed from 101 to 103 miles an hour, Wood drove his boat into its dock and inspected the 12 cylinder engine. He installed new spark plugs, hoping to increase his speed, but found they caused a pre-ignition.

He made one run and changed back to the regular plugs when his speed dropped down to 102 miles an hour. The engine was misfiring badly.

The veteran pilot made three other runs, two of which were slightly in excess of 102 miles an hour, and announced he was through for the day.

On his seventh run Wood sent his boat over the course at 102.14 miles an hour. Averaged with his fastest speed of the day, it would have given him a speed of 103.13 miles an hour, but, regardless of whether the record had been broken, it would not have counted, as the runs were not made within the 30 minute period.

Dusek, Evans to Wrestle on Stadium Card

Rudy Dusek of Omaha and Billy Evans, Oklahoma Indian, were signed yesterday for a preliminary match on the wrestling card at the Stadium next Tuesday night. Five other matches will be offered on the program, which is headed by Jim London and Kola Kwariant.

Kwariant will be meeting London for the second time in recent weeks in an attempt to win the heavyweight crown held by the latter. Kwariant had Mr. London in some difficult spots in their last match, but was forced to quit when he cracked a bone in his shoulder after having been thrown from the ring by one of London's airplane spins.

Jim McMillen, former University of Illinois football player and wrestler, will meet George Hagen in the semi-windup. Other grapplers on the card are Bronowicz, Zalaris, and Pejello.

CIGARS NOW "COLD-TREATED" TO RETAIN "NEW-MADE" FLAVOR!

MR. J. GOODBODY'S pleasant stroll was made more enjoyable by putting in a good word for "a box of good cigars". "I'm pleased with Dutch Masters. They taste fresh," said Mr. Goodbody.

MR. H. A. GERSTENKORN comments specifically on the flavor and mellowness of Dutch Masters.

IF YOU'VE ever smoked a cigar just when it's new-made, when its flavor and fragrance are at their Peak of Perfection, you know that no other smoke can compare with it.

For years the cigar industry has tried to find a way to preserve that fresh flavor—to give it to you in each cigar you smoke. And now Dutch Masters has succeeded. Their amazing "Cold-Treatment" process makes it possible!

This process takes a Dutch Masters cigar as it comes from the machine—just at the moment the rich, mellow tobaccos are at their peak of perfection...

And then, by the exclusive "Cold-Treating" process, that new-made fragrance and flavor are sealed within the cigar itself! So Dutch Masters are as fresh the minute you light them, as they are at the minute they're made!

Age-Old Triangle Causes Grief to 'Woman in the Case'

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"A friend of mine is going with a married man. She's been seeing him for the last five years. Recently his wife had a baby, the first after ten years of married life. Now, the husband is all wrapped up in the baby. He continues seeing the girl and tells her he cares for her still, but friends who know nothing of the affair say the man is very fond of his wife. "The girl my friend is just heart-broken since the baby came. She has done everything to help the man, financially and in every way, in the last few years. She has done more than his wife could do. He married when very young, right after his mother died and left him homeless. "What I would like to know is: Should the wife be told of his affair with the girl? Heaven only knows what he is telling his wife, and she is falling for it. I'm interested in the happiness of my friend, but whatever you say will go with me and with her. A. M."

Gracious, how much simpler life would be, as it is met in the man's department, anyway, if men would only try to stifle their polygamous emotions. Or, perhaps to put it more squarely to the point, if women wouldn't look upon married men as legitimate prey. The habit seems to be growing on both sides of the fence—the man seeking adventure outside the home walls and the girl seeking here with the married man clause in it. If the girl on the outside got happiness out of it, perhaps I'd assume the big, broad minded attitude characteristic of the day. So few ever get anything but a badly bruised heart out of these illicit affairs that they're not worth an hour of the time put into them. But life's life, and such affairs

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Chances Are Hopeless.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy who loves my girl friend. Should I give him up?" Woman.

If he's in love with another, your chances for making a favorable impression are rather hopeless.

Unflattering Habit.

"Dear Miss Blake: The girl I love has a habit of talking about fellows she goes out with. What shall I do?" "I Love Her."

Discourage such conversation by changing the subject each time.

will go on, regardless of advice or argument.

However, one of the great arguments presented in favor of our modern minded women is that they are fairer to their sisters; that they play a square game toward life all around. Now, does it seem like playing fair to acquit a wife of her husband's misdoings? I never could see the fairness of it, especially when the information is one who intruded on said wife's legal rights.

Regardless of the caliber of the man, which in this case is pretty obvious, his wife married him ten years ago; the outside girl has known him only half that time. And the wife has given him a child that the man adores. The child's position is something that a square minded woman cannot overlook. If the mother believes in the man, the child will, and that's the most important angle of consideration.

Movie Theater Chain Started by Purchase of Johannesburg Site

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.) CAPE TOWN, South Africa, April 16.—The American Metro-Goldwyn company has purchased a central site in Johannesburg for $350,000 to build a movie house, first of a chain throughout the Union of South Africa. It is also stated that the Lasky Bros. corporation has completed plans for a movie house in Johannesburg, and are looking for a suitable site. Carl Solin, a representative of the Metro-Goldwyn's new company, registered in Pretoria today.

Movie Famine Averted by Argentine Tax Compromise.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, April 16.—(AP)—A threatened motion picture film famine was believed to have been averted today by an official decree establishing an alternative for the recent eighteenfold tariff increases on films.

Under the new decree, effective yesterday, motion picture importers and distributors will pay a tax equivalent to 30 per cent of their net profits. Instead of the tariff. Payments of the tax are to be made semi-annually. Representatives of film producers had predicted the closing of motion picture theaters if relief from the high tariff was not forthcoming.

British Expert on Way to Study Hollywood Technique.

LONDON, April 16.—(AP)—John A. Throppe, production manager of the British International Pictures' Elstree studios, is en route to Hollywood to confer with American technicians. "I shall study particularly the latest innovations in recording 'sound' effects and shall make an extensive investigation of color film possibilities," he said.

Balloon Suit for the Summer Sands

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — (Special.) — Among the thousand and one versions of the modern beach pajama, Maggy Rouff offers Turkish balloon trousers that might have stepped out of the "Thousand and One Nights," so interestingly filled by that little chatterbox Scherazade, except that Maggy Rouff's oriental pajamas have a skirt and waist more Parisian than the well known Eiffel tower, and that she often uses fabrics that the old caliph, Haroun-al-Raschid, never imagined for all his luxury.

One of Maggy Rouff's modern Turkish balloon suits is sketched today. The balloons are brown linen, and so is the mannish waistcoat, with its aggressively tailored revers that is fitted in to accentuate a slender girlish waist.

The short sleeved blouse is all made of narrow strips of white linen and red linen sewed together, giving the effect of Algerian striped fabric. One red and one white stripe edge the pockets in the waistcoat. The closing of the shirt front has the stripes used horizontally. The tie is of red linen. The huge sun hat is of white paper palladium trimmed with a red linen band.

The red and white linen is sewed together in wider bands for large beach bag and parasol. The sandals are of brown linen with rope soles.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Billy wanted tea for his supper so I mixed a little hot water into his milk. He watched me do this, and as I was stirring the sugar into it he said, "Please, mama, let me wind it up, will you?"—A. W. F.

Smoke Attacks Health, New Yorkers Told; Statistics Are Cited

New York, April 16.—[Special.]—Business interests that refuse to cooperate in the drive to clear the atmosphere of smoke and ash were attacked as selfish, indifferent to the public health, and shortsighted today. A meeting was held at the Biltmore, sponsored by the national conference board on sanitation in conjunction with the New York state and city federations of women's clubs.

The speakers were Health Commissioner Wyne, Dr. Thomas Darlington, chairman of the health department's trial board on smoke violations; Col. Elliot H. Whittick, research professor in smoke abatement at Stevens Institute of Technology; Dr. H. B. Meller, director of smoke investigation for the Mellon Institute of industrial Research at Pittsburgh; and Laura A. Cawley, chairman of the conference board, who presided. Dr. Wyne declared that he would "like to call the attention of business men to the fact that if New York were not such a healthy city as it is, it would not be so prosperous. Fifty years ago there were fifty deaths per 1,000 inhabitants. If health measures had not intervened, 200,000 persons now living would have died last year." Sinus and respiratory diseases, he went on, had grown with the increase of smoke in the atmosphere, causing rickets and through that disease a large number of deaths from childhood.

"Just as soon as the engineers realize that it is their responsibility, they will find means and methods of abating smoke," he added. "We are entitled to clean air and sunshine just as we are entitled to clean food and milk. We must educate the firemen, install proper equipment, use the proper fuel, and supply a sufficient amount of boiler capacity."

SAYS TWO-THIRDS OF U. S. POPULATION LACK CHURCH LINK

Atlanta, Ga., April 16.—(AP)—The department of home missions of the United States reported today that receipts for the year ending March 31, 1931, were $464,647, or $57,722 less than during the previous year. "This decrease," a statement of the executive committee said, "made necessary the fifth successive reduction in appropriations, and a further curtailment in the church's home mission activities." The committee appealed for more money, saying that there are "more than two-thirds of our population unconnected with any church, 10,000 villages without a church of any kind, and 40,000 villages without a resident pastor." It was also cited that in the south there are 13,000,000 children not in any Sunday school. "America must become Christian," the committee appealed, "or ultimately go the way of all pagan nations in history. It is Christ or chaos for America."

CITY HALL WEARS MOURNING FOR FIREMEN HEROES

Carrying out an order of Mayor Cermak sent from Miami, all entrances to the city hall were draped in purple and black yesterday, and flags on all fire stations and other municipal buildings flew at half staff.

These symbols of mourning were for the four firemen who, with seven laborers, lost their lives when overcome by smoke and gas in the sanitary district tunnel at 23d and LaSalle streets Monday night and early Tuesday.

A survey of municipal fire prevention regulations ordered by Acting Fire Commissioner Edward A. Malone was under way yesterday. If the present code is found deficient, an amendment will be drafted.

Funeral services for Capt. James O'Neill of truck company 14, Firemen William J. Coyne, engine company 23, and Fireman Edward Pratt of Squad 8, will be held this morning. Services for Fireman William H. Karstens of engine company 23, will be held tomorrow afternoon.

The officers' association of the fire department last night adopted a resolution of condolence for the death of Capt. O'Neill. An embossed copy of the resolution and a wreath were sent to his family.

When the directors meet late this month it is expected that the regular quarterly dividend will be declared, with the possibility that an extra may be voted later in the year. The first quarter earnings cover dividend requirements by an ample margin.

As had been indicated in the earlier action of directors in passing the preferred dividend, the company's business last year made a poor showing in contrast with the preceding year.

tion reports that during March the value of $4 preferred stock to customers reached a new monthly record of 20,473 shares. About 27 per cent of the outstanding $4 preferred stock is now owned by customers, it was stated.

It is believed that the acquisition of the Gary Heat, Light, and Water company by Midland United company will entail some new financing by the latter concern. As a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, Swift International, which has distinguished itself marketwise this year by virtue of the favorable showing in 1939, was under some pressure yesterday. The stock has had the advantage of earnings which amply covered dividend requirements. It is now on a $3 annual basis.

Chicago curb stocks were dull and lower today. Consolidated Trust Shares were

BROKERS' LOANS
SHOW ADVANCE
OF $27,000,000Payments of Taxes
Clew to Gain.

BY O. A. MATHER.

It used to be that a man borrowed from his bank when he needed money for tax payments. But in the last few years of wide investment and speculation, many men are about as likely to borrow from their brokers, using either securities owned outright and held on margin in their accounts. The brokers, in turn, borrow at the bank.

This appears to be the clew to an increase of $27,000,000 in brokers' loans in the last week, as reported by the Federal Reserve bank yesterday. There wasn't any return in stock market prices to account for the increase in loans, but the New York stock market was up 10 points, and Chicago real estate taxes are in process of collection.

Credit Demand Slackens.

Brokers' loans now total $1,140,000,000, which is considerably less than at the end of the $1,165,000,000 a year ago. In fact, the comparative increase is $2,700,000,000. But the market was having its ill fated rally a year ago, whereas recently it has shown a declining tendency in price. The detail of the current report shows that the New York brokers increased their own loans by $47,000,000, while the interior banks and non-banking lenders withdrew $14,000,000 and $4,000,000 respectively.

The demand for credit for commercial purposes from the country's banks advanced perceptibly in the last week, according to the weekly statement of the Federal Reserve system. The member banks reduced their borrowings from the reserve banks by $10,561,000, leaving total borrowings down to $12,124,000,000. The reserve banks reduced their holdings of bankers' acceptances by $40,550,000. Their holdings of government securities held steady.

Deposits Expanded.
Deposits of the reserve banks expanded $1,317,000 and their note circulation $10,573,000. Their gold and silver reserves increased $10,827,000, respectively, and the total of reserves to liabilities rose to $12,124,000,000. The reserve banks reduced their holdings of bankers' acceptances by $40,550,000. Their holdings of government securities held steady.

The New York Federal Reserve bank made no change yesterday in its 2 per cent discount rate. Its report showed a decline of $8,611,000 in member bank borrowings, bringing the total down to $25,144,900. The reserve bank reduced its holdings of bankers' acceptances by $12,993,000, but maintained its government securities. Deposits increased $12,731,000. Reserves increased $12,093,000, but the reserve bank reduced its holdings of bankers' acceptances by $12,993,000, but maintained its government securities. Deposits increased $12,731,000. Reserves increased $12,093,000, but the reserve bank reduced its holdings of bankers' acceptances by $12,993,000, but maintained its government securities.

The report of the Chicago reserve bank showed an increase of $715,000 in borrowings of the member banks, bringing their total to $12,350,000. On the other hand, the reserve bank reduced its holdings of bankers' acceptances by $2,915,000, but maintained its government securities. Deposits declined $4,432,000. Reserves expanded $11,212,000 and the reserve bank reduced its holdings of bankers' acceptances by $2,915,000, but maintained its government securities.

OWENS ILLINOIS GLASS CO. CUTS DIVIDEND RATE
The annual dividend rate on the common stock of Owens Illinois Glass Co. was cut to 88 with the declaration yesterday of a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share. This compares with a 34 yearly rate previously maintained.

James Wilkinson, chairman of the Owens Illinois Glass Co., one of the largest glass producers, said the company was not in jeopardy. The company is operating at 50 per cent capacity, he said, and added that with this rate of "operations and increasing prices for finished products, we are covering our preferred dividend requirements."

Directors of the United States Realty and Improvement company today announced a cut in its quarterly dividend from 75 cents a share paid in the two previous quarters to 50 cents.

The General Tire and Rubber company announced a quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share on the common stock of $1.50 annual basis, compared with a previous rate of 10 cents. The action was taken to maintain the strong capital position. It was said.

Bank to Finance Foreign Trade Soon to Be Opened

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 16.—Plans for a new acceptance bank, sponsored by

Gen. James G. Harbord, chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, and other business men, which is expected to assist in the development of American export trade, are reaching maturity and will be announced during the latter part of next week, it was learned today.

The institution, known as the Federal International Banking corporation, has been sponsored by the Federal International corporation, of which Gen. Harbord is chairman—an organization created for the purpose of assisting American manufacturing interests in the exportation of their products and the financing thereof. A charter was granted the new bank late last year by the federal reserve board under the Edge act.

At the time the act was amended through bills introduced in the house by Representative Ruth Pratt of New York and in the senate by Senator

Hatch of Florida. The bills in question were designed to enable "Edge act" banks to make available to American exporters credit facilities at more favorable terms than were previously possible.

Several important American corporations are understood to be interested in the formation of the new bank. These include the Pennrod company, and the International Harvester company. The Radio Corporation of America was designed to be interested in the bank but has issued an official denial.

According to reports current in the financial district yesterday, the new bank will have capital of about $10,000,000. It will originate two new kinds of acceptance—designed to fill a long-felt need in the financing of American exports.

The name, other details, and the members of the board of directors of the new bank will be made public next week.

Foreign banks who will participate in the new banking corporation, it is learned, include the Commerz and Private Bank of Berlin, the Hungarian Bank of Budapest, the Hungarian Bank of Budapest, the Lower Austrian Discount Company of Vienna, and the Comptoir d'Escompte de Geneve, Geneva, Switzerland.

The money market and banking world is specially interested in the two new varieties of bankers' acceptances which the new banking corporation is to be authorized to create under its charter. These "resale" acceptances, which will have not more than six months maturity, will finance goods moving to dealers abroad in territory of foreign distributors, while the reseller bills will finance movements of goods from dealers in one country to dealers in another, thereby preventing the export of goods by goods being lodged in a country where sale is difficult when, through reimpement, they might be readily sold in another country.

In addition to these bills the corporation can also create the ordinary ninety day export acceptances, but this class of business it intends to leave to commercial banks which, under rules of the federal reserve board, cannot originate acceptances of the resale or export variety, though they can under certain conditions buy such bills.

Reports on Foreign Trade.

Washington, D. C., April 16.—(AP)—Exports of merchandise from the United States during March exceeded imports by $26,000,000. The commerce department announced today the total of outgoing goods was $287,000,000, compared with $261,000,000 in March, 1930, and imports were $261,000,000, compared with $287,000,000.

For the three months ending March 31, exports were $711,030,000, compared with $1,129,250,000, and imports were $569,240,000, against $585,135,000. Exports of gold during March were $6,000,000 and imports $35,861,000.

R. Arthur Wood, president of the Chicago exchange, said the bill discriminates against the exchange and puts it at a disadvantage with the New York Stock Exchange. He pointed out that the Chicago exchange has built up the market in the west for investors and that its requirements as to listing are identical with those of the New York market.

"We have constantly exercised every power to stamp out those individuals who prey on the ignorance of investors," he said. "We feel that our business conduct must have been on a high standard to attract investors from the majority of states in the nation."

Lester L. Falk, counsel for the Chicago Stock Exchange, said some securities had defaulted but that most of the defaults were in securities which had passed the Wisconsin securities division with a class "A" rating.

Falk urged the committee composed more stringent fraud laws rather than attempt to further qualify securities. He also urged more complete supervision of sellers.

GOOD FIRST QUARTERPROTEST WISCONSIN
SALE OF SECURITIES

Madison, Wis., April 16.—(AP)—Protests against the bill to restrict the sale of securities listed on the Chicago and Boston stock exchanges were made by Wisconsin brokers and officials of the Chicago exchange at a senate committee hearing here today. Under the terms of the bill, salesmen handling securities listed on the Chicago and Boston exchanges would be prohibited from soliciting in Wisconsin except when the securities division of the state railroad commission approved the securities being sold.

R. Arthur Wood, president of the Chicago exchange, said the bill discriminates against the exchange and puts it at a disadvantage with the New York Stock Exchange. He pointed out that the Chicago exchange has built up the market in the west for investors and that its requirements as to listing are identical with those of the New York market.

"We have constantly exercised every power to stamp out those individuals who prey on the ignorance of investors," he said. "We feel that our business conduct must have been on a high standard to attract investors from the majority of states in the nation."

Lester L. Falk, counsel for the Chicago Stock Exchange, said some securities had defaulted but that most of the defaults were in securities which had passed the Wisconsin securities division with a class "A" rating.

Falk urged the committee composed more stringent fraud laws rather than attempt to further qualify securities. He also urged more complete supervision of sellers.

G. Lynn Sumner, New York advertising man, addressed members of the Advertising Council of Chicago at the Hotel La Salle yesterday on the subject of "The Economic Value of Truth in Advertising." Mr. Sumner reviewed the long fight made to insure honesty in advertising and pointed out the fact that big business has found that truth in advertising pays in dollars. He asserted that a survey made some time ago disclosed that 200 corporations reported average profits of $15,000,000 in 1927. The success of these corporations was attributed largely to advertising, he said.

Wheat Prices Close Firmer;
Dust Storms in Northwest

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat fluctuated in an erratic manner yesterday, breaking early on the weakness in foreign markets and in sympathy with the decline in stocks in New York, only to rally sharply from the inside figure and close with the July 1/2 lower and the deferred futures 1/4 higher, July being 62 1/2; September, 63 1/2; and December, 66 1/2 at the last. Spreading operations were largely responsible for the relative weakness in the July and the strength in the September, the difference narrowing from 2 1/2 at the finish on Wednesday to 1/2 at the close yesterday. There was buying of the distant months, which the trade credited to short covering for a leading local professional, and also selling here against purchases at Winnipeg to close spreads.

Foreign Markets Weaken.
Uneasiness over the political developments in Spain, and in South America had some effect on the grain as well as the stock market, and a break of 1/4 in the Argentine exchange rate due to a withdrawal of government support caused a decline of 1/2 in the Argentine wheat. An Argentine cable reported a decline of 1/2 of Argentine wheat as the result of the decline in prices, which was also a factor in causing a drop of 1/4 in Liverpool. July in the latter finished at 64 1/2.

Foreign demand for Canadian wheat was much less active, with sales in all positions estimated at 200,000 bu for the day, and aside from some hard winter reported taken by France at 75,000 bu. L. F. for prompt shipment from the Gulf on Wednesday nothing was heard regarding demand for domestic trade. Winnipeg closed 1/4 lower for
